I am truly sorry my presense so enrages Robeson that ihe makes the NG unreadable I had had some fond hopes that his silence meant he sobered up with the R&O

but as can be plainly seen he has not he is still drunk with the mad hate for me bascial for not being exactly what he thinks I should and for being smarter than he

the origins of this for those jioing the shit storm in progress is bascialy this after sparing with steve in RRAP years he treatened to murder and tried to balck mail with evidence he and one of his freinds had found out about me being bisexaul instaed of hiding I outed myself

indeed his whole existance on RRAP has been dreging across the USENET and indeed beyond looking for something trash those that opposed him he has typed word claiming to support accodation in Code testing but has baosted of dening code waivers on his own "authority.

he makes jokes about rape and child molesting and hassrasses the disableity un mercifully

indeed amoug his sins was harrasing because I sought a accomdated code test as was my right

I apologize for the unpleasent reading folks it is up to robeson I will be here till I can sign KB9RQZ/AE stve does not that and tries by flooding th e NG to turn the ire of folks against Me he has condocted this sort of cyber terroism for years against many target only a few have resisted, he calls them the "feeble five" he trashed and harrassed of peronaly at least 40 posters by count

Whew!

Finally, the code requirement is going away.

Now we can start working towards only one license class. One that doesn't separate those who know more and those who know less. After all, look how it hurts the self esteem of those technician class licensees.

And then, when we have only one license class that permits all privileges, then we can work towards removing the written testing requirement, given the state of store bought equipment these days.

And then, finally, getting a ham license will be merely filling out a form, writing a check, and then mailing it in.

And then, finally, the true end state, no license requirement at all.

Breaker breaker 14.230, there, good buddy! You got yer ears on?

Guy

What Robesin posted was so repulsive that I'd rather not re-read it.
What kind of sick mind dreams up that kind of stuff, anyway?

Regardless of any miscommunication, that kind of talk is not welcome on an amateur radio newsgroup, and shows the poster to be an idiot and look like a fool.

> brian and I are not "pals" we hardly know each and disagree about

I've never met Mark in person or on the air. However, we have both been the subject of unwarranted attacks by one of the sickest minds on RRAP. When Paul finally moderates this newsgroup, Robesin will not be welcome.

Yup, he screwed up. Just like Robesin to do that.

Not only that, but an apology to you and the newsgroup is in order.

Jim/N2EY was the very first to roll that one out, at least that I am aware of.

They think that there might as well be no testing at all now that the code exam is gone. They sure don't value the writtens very much, do they?

That was on a bisexual/queer website most likely, as I've never had that on any sites I visit.

marqueer says he will no longer post on usenet when "it" can sign "AE"
after "it's" call.

lets see.....what would that mean?

no more fucking with yz and insulting his family.

no more fucking with roger.

no more fucking with the cb group.

no more fucking with the shortwave group.

etc.etc.etc.etc.etc.etc.

i doubt the faggot will be leaving anytime soon........that little wormy queer is addicted to to his faggotry.

Sue me. Anyway, you are not licensed to operate HF. Not at this time. It was an unofficial announcement. Got any OO's in your area? You might be getting a reminder in the mail. Or, if you'd like, I can contact one and have him send you the reminder myself.

There was no "typoe" to face, Morkie.

YOU can't understand the words right in front of you.

Nope.

All you have produced is faked logs.

Brain has not only NOT produced any logs, he hasn't even produced a single QSL card for any of his "operations".

> > Brain's been busted on so many points of fact about both Amateur > >Radio and MARS
> no he disagrees with YOU on mater of opinion

No...He's made assinine assertions about ARES, RACES and MARS that have at each and every turn been DISPROVED...Not by me, but by current events in the news. Brain's biggest bungle has been about claiming how ARES cannot/will not respond to big disasters, especially over a sustained period.

Whelp...Both the events of September 11th and the Hurricaine Rita / Katrina episodes have proved him wrong...And those are just TWO examples.

Sure it does, among other things.

You've made this claim before yet you've never ID'd a single person who made such a claim.

I've worked several people from here on RRAP, a couple of folks, including Hans, who don't like me, yet none of them can claim I was a "bad ham" on the air.

So again, we have KB9RQZ generating more "discretionary lies" for

Let's start out with just about everyone that's been telling you that you're an idiot and that you're making a fool out of yourself over this. Which is just about everyone excpet Brain.

Nope.

I claim that YOU are a functionally illiterate boob that can't make sense of the SIMPLE English in front of him.

"Morkie, I will conceed that YOU know two things that I will NEVER KNOW..."

It's in YOUR lap, fatboy...And again you're left without anything to wipe it up with.

> > YOU have. All of your "apology" posts wherein you "blame" me for Your apologies are meaningless since you "apologize" then go right on ahead and continue to do those things that everyone finds offensive.

> you do not you have truned #### into a bed of filth it satrts to clean

It only "cleans out" when YOU stop with your "excrement" subject lines and prolific use of profanity in the subject lines and text.

My WHAT...?!??!

Of course I can read.

But what YOU type is usually mispelled or inappropriate to the context.

Now...WHAT is a "cosession", collegeboy?

And "consession"...?!?!

Let's hope your "wife" buys you some spellchecking software for Christmas.

Getting tired of having to make up lies, I see, Morkie.

That's OK...you take a rest fatboy.

I see you would rather fight than admit to the lack of English comprehension skills of Morkie Moron. So now you do him an injustice by not helping him to see what a fool he's been making of himself, but you make a fool out of yourself in the process.

> Regardless of any miscommunication...(SNIP)

I guess this is as close to "the truth" as Brain will allow himslef to get without having to acknowledge that I'm right and Morkie's wrong.

Guess there's no amount of salt and pepper to season taht crow, huh...?!?!?

Not quite as foolish as allowing a colleague to go on re-quoting it erroneusly, Brain.

Some pal you turned out to be.

This group won't be moderaed, Brain.

Andf in any case, I seriously doubt that Paul will be as tolerant of lying and deceit anymore than he'd be tolerant of profanity and vulgarity...Which pretty much leaves you and Morkie on the outside looking in too, I'd say...

Whelp...I guess I was wrong...Brian P Burke is as equally incompetent in English comprehension as Mark C Morgan.

Or was this "just foggy enough" to try and squeak by yet another N0IMD two-faced reply...?!?! I say it is.

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill
the time till the densit sees me

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill
the time till the densit sees me

sending you forgeries does not help robeson

btw the more you refuse the more new threads

I never said that, Morkie...but you go right on insisting I did and making a bigger fool out of yourself eacha nd every time you do.

He is.

No lies there, Morkie.

YOU claimed to take sex by force.

Your father obviously was since you're here.

You've been underinvestigation in not one but two states for inappropriate conduct with children so there's GOT to be a greater truth to that.

You're on welfare yet claiming you run a computer based business from home, ergo you're a welfare cheat.

And you're incompetent at high school level English, ergo it's even easier to figure out about where you dropeed out of school.

> a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

He does understand...He called it YOUR "miscommunication".

I doubt it but I am prepared to be proven wrong for once you are a porven liar you offered upp the poorf AGIAN today

you well tell any lie to try and cover your other lies not a professional but that seems like pathological lying to me that is difference between us Stve yes I will to proect myself or toher from possible

you do when you get caught making a mistake

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill
the time till the densit sees me

sending you forgeries does not help robeson

btw the more you refuse the more new threads

no steve I am justing trying to help you the error of your ways

You're not being stalked.

You're being made fun of for being an idiot, and you keep providing more than ample opportunities to do THAT!

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill
the time till the densit sees me

sending you forgeries does not help robeson

btw the more you refuse the more new threads

no steve I am justing trying to help you the error of your ways

Stop making a fool out of yourself by insisting I said something I didn't.

> stop your lying about my not having served in the armed you stole the

You ARE misquoting me when you insist that I said you consume my excrement.

I never said any such thing.

> jioing a newgruop is not signing some kind of consent to being stalked
> stev stop that lie

You're not being stalked.

You're being made fun of for being an idiot, and you keep
providing more than ample opportunities to do THAT!

> stop you big that you are trying to do me some sort of favor

I am.

> you are not you are lying and engaing in your gay bashing hate

I am not gay bashing nor am I hate mongering.

> steve I do have a life but mine is set differently than yours

Oh, it's DIFFERENT, alright..."Deviant" comes to mind.

> as to filth steve it is amazing that it ok for you post something but > filthy if I dare repat it

I didn't say my words were filthy.

I said your use of the the word "shit" over and over and your insistance that I said something other than what I DID say is.

> and if I am entertianing you as you clim then you have NO cause to be

> have encoutered one another on the air and here but that is it

But Morkie we have NUMEROUS posts that YOU made in this very forum
where you SWORE that you haven't even MET Toiddie!

Now YOU have been busted in yet ANOTHER lie!

> Steve you must enoy having it said that you force men to eat your #### > since you come here of your own free will. No? then you lie when my > comming has anything to do with the matter

I never made any such claim, Morkie.

YOU have. And it's STILL wrong.

> indeed you did not stop you r attacks on me here in or in real life
> when I left rrap years as you demended in your blackmial

There's never been any "mial", black or otherwise, fatso.

You ARE misquoting me when you insist that I said you consume my
excrement.

I never said any such thing.

You're not being stalked.

You're being made fun of for being an idiot, and you keep
providing more than ample opportunities to do THAT!

> stop you big that you are trying to do me some sort of favor

I am.

I didn't say my words were filthy.

I said your use of the the word "shit" over and over and your insistance that I said something other than what I DID say is.

But Morkie we have NUMEROUS posts that YOU made in this very forum
where you SWORE that you haven't even MET Toiddie!

Now YOU have been busted in yet ANOTHER lie!

Your use of the word karma in that application proves you don't know what it means, fatboy.

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill

You ARE misquoting me when you insist that I said you consume my excrement.

I never said any such thing.

You're not being stalked.

You're being made fun of for being an idiot, and you keep
providing more than ample opportunities to do THAT!

> stop you big that you are trying to do me some sort of favor

I am.

I didn't say my words were filthy.

I said your use of the the word "shit" over and over and your insistance that I said something other than what I DID say is.

But Morkie we have NUMEROUS posts that YOU made in this very forum
where you SWORE that you haven't even MET Toiddie!

Now YOU have been busted in yet ANOTHER lie!

I never made any such claim, Morkie.

YOU have. And it's STILL wrong.

I never claimed any perfection, moral or otherwise, Morkie.

I just claim to be better than you...And that doesn't require much.

excrement.

I never said any such thing.

> jioing a newgruop is not signing some kind of consent to being stalked
> stev stop that lie

You're not being stalked.

You're being made fun of for being an idiot, and you keep
providing more than ample opportunities to do THAT!

> stop you big that you are trying to do me some sort of favor

I am.

> you are not you are lying and engaing in your gay bashing hate
> mongering

I am not gay bashing nor am I hate mongering.

> steve I do have a life but mine is set differently than yours

Oh, it's DIFFERENT, alright..."Deviant" comes to mind.

> as to filth steve it is amazing that it ok for you post something but
> filthy if I dare repat it

I didn't say my words were filthy.

I said your use of the the word "shit" over and over and your insistance that I said something other than what I DID say is.

> and if I am entertianing you as you clim then you have NO cause to be > upset and should thanking me for it

Nope.

> and stev it is LIE on your part to say Todd and are firend or buddies > or lovers. we have meet a few times when I lived in springfeild and > have encoutered one another on the air and here but that is it

But Morkie we have NUMEROUS posts that YOU made in this very forum
where you SWORE that you haven't even MET Toiddie!

Now YOU have been busted in yet ANOTHER lie!

> Steve you must enoy having it said that you force men to eat your #### > since you come here of your own free will. No? then you lie when my
> comming has anything to do with the matter

I never made any such claim, Morkie.

YOU have. And it's STILL wrong.

> indeed you did not stop you r attacks on me here in or in real life
> when I left rrap years as you demended in your blackmial

There's never been any "mial", black or otherwise, fatso.

There's no stalking here, fatboy.

You come here voluntarily. Any suggestion otherwise is, (as if we should expect something else?) a lie from you.

> as I said more than a year ago I would not stand for the constant > libel of Robeson and few other in NG for more than year we have been > "treated" to steve effort to wera me down under his torrent of filth
> and lies

The torrent of "filth and lies" comes from Chassell, Michigan, Morkie.

> whe n I saw 100 plus posts on this subject from obviously I could > answer them indivualy, unlike Robeson I have life

No, you don't.

Any quick perusal of YOUR posts shows that you post everyday, around the clock.

My posts come on "off" days and when there's nothing on the late movie.

You're my cheap, late night entertainment.

> I may have steamrolled over something other than steve diatribe if I > steamrooled over you missing your content for this I am sorry

No you're not.

Everyone in this forum, your "friends" included, have told you your crap isn't appreciated ehre, yet you outpost everyone here, myself included, 15:1.

> this message will be sent multitime in hope in may survive

And there's my point. You're bound and determined to frag the NG no matter what.

> following is at this point is the cut and paste at it full measure bit > got afdded as I noted charged made again that I wished to adress

In other words, you STILL haven't gotten it through your numb skull that you're making a fool out of oursself, to wit:

> Morkie, I will conceed that you know two things that I will never > know...What it's like to lick my excrement off of another man's > genitals, and the going welfare rates in Michigan. steve goes claiming > othermen eat his ####

Stupid, stupid stupid, Morkie...That's all I can say about YOUR interpretation of that paragraph.

YOU have re-quoted it over 2,500 times now and I only posted it once...Yet YOU still think it somehow has words in it that clearly are not there.

> stop the lying stop the vandalism and stop the bull at this point my > server say you have post 8o plus itme titled with #### or a synoym in > the title

Like I said, Morkie...You out-post me 15:1. Daily.

There's no vandalism. The filth and profanity are YOURS and YOURS alone.

> stop lying syaing I eat your ####

Stop claiming you have three college degrees and then clearly demonstrating that you're incompetent in basic English comprehension.

> stop lying about being miiss quoted

I am being misquoted.

YOU keep claiming that I suggest that you consume MY excrement, or that I am claiming that other men consume my excrement.

That's a lie.

> get a life and get help since you are clearly obessed with staking a > man sexualy

I HAVE a life...That's why I don't pound EVERY post of yours with foul language and deceitful misquotes on a daily basis like you do mine.

> the truth I trick you in 1998 when you threnting to MURDER me

The truth is you've been lying since 1998 on every subjected you've engaged in RRAP. The truth is your tales are so transparent that you couldn't hold water with them.

> stop this whining and face facts you are the one that is sick with > your obesstion for ####

You are the one with an "obesstion" for excrement, fatboy.

> the ruth is you are truly MAD robeson get help

Nope.

> and please stop the lie I have seen that you are doing ANYTHING for my > benifit

I am. I am trying to make you see what an idiot and a fool you make out of yourself in public. These "apology" posts of yours are classic.

> and stop lying about the ToS of Google they expressly prohibit your > cyvervandalism

Stop whining. Stop being a dork that acts lie Mork.

> and stop lying about my Military service I have my DD 214 as I guess > you do likely yours list section 8 as reason for discharge

What military service?

The only thing YOU "serviced" in the military was some drunk soldiers via a knothole in the outhouse.

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

Do what, Morkie?

You mean why do I keep making a fool out of you?

Because you take the time to provide the opportunity. Why should I let it go to waste?

He understood them just fine, regardless of whether he liked them
or not.

He called YOUR interpretation of them a "miscommunication". His tactful way of not having to directly admit that I am right and you are wrong.

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill

He understood them just fine, regardless of whether he liked them
or not.

He called YOUR interpretation of them a "miscommunication". His tactful way of not having to directly admit that I am right and you are wrong.

I guess repeaters in general, whether it GMRS, commercial, or Ham, will still use CW identifiers, they even use it on satellites.. It seems strange, but it will be that way for a long time.

Listening to the bands these days I have come to the conclusion that many Keys have indeed become Silent although they are not physically dead.

And yes, when more code operators die they are just as dead as any other amateur radio operator who has passed away.

FWIW - when one "presses the mic button to talk" - they are considered to be "KEYING" the mic. Therefore - anyone who is a ham - be they a "code" key user OR "key" a mic - would still pass as a "silent "key" "
The code is GONE - there is nothing we can do about its demise - so lets start PROMOTING decent Radio Skills - beginning with the vanishment of insulting amongst the ranks first off - and those who "might" be considering coming into the hobby.

well said indeed althought still maintiain I will an SK only over my dead body

and Intend for that never to happen even have a plan to carry it out chinese say "man who finishes house dies" therefore I will never quite finish my home and live forever

but seriously the attiudes and "proCoders" were one of the biggest things working in favor of NoCode

Code use is now in the hands it should be in those that suport it .
well on second even I, and I do hate the mode personaly would wish it a better fate than its supports are likely to contrive but for good or ill it their problem not mine

but insulting those you are requiting ro seeking to convince was never a good idea I hope they learn that soon

2861. Thirty Helpful Hints For KB9RQZ and His New Found Voice Priviledges (With Thanks AND Apologies To Slow Code...)

Morkie Step 1: Change the Q signals to your own meaning, then get mad at people when they tell you that you aren't making sense at all...Let alone using them on phone.

> Step Two: Never laugh when you can say "HI HI". No one will ever know you > aren't a long time CW rag-chewer if you don't tell them. They'll think > you've been on since the days of Marconi.

Morkie Step 2: Send it as IH IH and blame dyslexia.

> Step Three: Utilize an alternative vocabulary. Use words like "destinated" > and "negatory". It's OK to make up your own words here. I.E. "Yeah Tom, I > "pheelbart zaphonix" occasionally myself."

Morkie Step 3: You can just take a lot of your RRAP postings and use them on the air. God knows there's enough of them.

> Step Four: Always say "XX4XXX" (Insert your own call) "for I.D." As > mentioned in Step One, anything that creates redundancy is always > encouraged. That's why we have the Department of Redundancy Department.
> (Please note that you can follow your call with "for identification > purposes" instead of "for I.D." While taking longer to say, it is worth > more "LID points".

Morkie Step 4: This won't be a BIG problem for Morkie...It's unlikely he'll be talking to too many people other than "gavi", and he'll be trying to avoid Morkie on the air anyway.

> Step Five: The better the copy on two meter FM, the more you should use > phonetics. Names should be especially used if they are short or common > ones. I.E. "My name is Al... Alpha Lima" or "Jack.. Juliet Alpha Charlie > Kilo." If at all possible use the less common HF phonetics "A4SM...

> America, Number Four, Sugar Mexico." And for maximum "LID points", make up > unintelligible phonetics. "My name is Bob... Billibong Oregano > Bumperpool."

Morkie Step 5: "Keep Banging 9 Rabid Queer Zebras"

> Step Six: Always give the calls of yourself and everyone who is (or has > been) in the group, whether they are still there or not. While this has > been unnecessary for years, it is still a great memory test. You may also > use "and the group" if you are an "old timer" or just have a bad memory.
> Extra points for saying everyone's call and then clearing in a silly way
> "K2PKK, Chow, Chow."

Morkie Step 6: Just read down those "moonbunce" logs of yours and pretend you are REALLY talking to them. Leave a 2 or 3 minute pause when using the repeater and someone will just think you're hearing someone on simplex or an overlapping repeater.

> Step Seven: Whenever possible, use the wrong terminology. It keeps people > guessing. Use "modulation" when you mean "deviation", and vice-versa.

Morkie Step 7: Same thing as Morkie Steps 1 and 3.

> Step Eight: If someone asks for a break, always finish your turn, taking > as long as possible before turning it over. Whenever possible, pass it > around a few times first. This will discourage the breaker, and if it is > an emergency, encourage him to switch to another repeater and not bother > you.

Morkie Step 8: Ignore this, Morkie..Go ahead and answer the call.
We all know you're incompetent in English, and by the time the poor bloke on the other end figures out he's not going to get the message through via you, his batteries will ahve already dropped so low he can't be heard any longer anyway...The problem goes away.

> Step Nine: Always ask involved questions of the person who is trying to > sign out. Never let him get by with just a "yes" or "no" answer. Make it a > question that will take him a long time to answer.

Morkie Step 9: Read a dictionary and learn the MEANING of "yes"
and "no".

> Step Ten: The less you know on a subject, the more you should speculate > about it in the roundtable. Also the amount of time you spend on the > subject should be inversely proportionate to your knowledge of the subject > even though you have no damn clue.

Morkie Step 10: Here's a page right out of Morkie Past...Just ask a question and then when some poor well meaning slob DOES answer you, regardless of how correct his answer, cuss him out, call him names, then brag to everyone how great an Amateur you are.

You can use K0HB as a reference and RRAP posters as witnesses.

> Step Eleven: Always make sure you try to communicate with only a handheld > and a rubber duck antenna. Also, make sure you work through a repeater > that you can hear very well, but it cannot hear you. This will put out a > kind of "LID mating call": "Well, Joe, I can hear the repeater just fine > here. I wonder why it can't hear me?" You will score maximum LID points if > you are mobile, and with the radio lying in the passenger seat.

Morkie Step 11: Have Gavvie sitting on the mic after having beer and tacos for dinner...They'll REALLY love you on the repeater.

> Step Twelve: If you hear two amateurs start a conversation, wait until > they are twenty seconds into their contact, and then break in to make a > call, or better yet to use the auto-patch. Make sure you keep the repeater > tied up for at least three minutes. This way, once the two have > re-established contact, they won't even remember what they were talking > about.

Morkie Step 12: Make sure you call Gavvie on the autopatch to tell him you'll be home in 2 minutes, but to give you a quick call on the cell phone before you get there "just in case"...

> Step Thirteen: You hear someone on the repeater giving directions to a > visiting amateur. Even if the directions are good, make sure you break in > with your own "alternate route but better way to get there" version. This > the guy get back out of town, later.

Morkie Step 13: And remember to read the street names just as YOU see them, not as they are written...His Mapquest will blow up trying to unscramble that mess...

> Step Fourteen: If an annoying station is bothering you, make sure your > other "LID" buddies have a "coded" frequency list. Even though "CODES" are > strictly forbidden on Amateur Radio, it's really neat to practice "James > Bond" tactics.

Morkie Step 14: Guess this will be easy enough, since only you and Gavvie will need to memorize them.

> Step Fifteen: Always use the National Calling Frequency for general > conversations. The more uninteresting, the longer you should use it. Extra > points are awarded if you have recently move from an adjacent frequency > for no reason. Make sure when DX is "rolling" in on 52.525 that you hang Morkie Step 15: Remember to be "on the flat side" when they are all on the "flip side".

> Step Sixteen: Make sure that if you have a personal problem with someone, > you should voice your opinion in a public forum, especially a net. Make > sure you give their name, call, and any other identifying remarks. For > maximum points, make sure the person in question is not on the repeater, > or not available.

Morkie Step 16: In otherwords, just be your same old annoying self.

> Step Seventeen: Make sure you say the first few words of each transmission > twice, especially if it is the same thing each time. Like "roger, roger" > or "fine business, fine business". I cannot stress enough about > encouraging redundancy.

Morkie Step 17: Refer to Morkie Step 3.

> Step Eighteen: If you hear a conversation on a local repeater, break in > and ask how each station is receiving you. Of course they will only see > the signal of the repeater you are using, but it's that magic moment when > you can find a fellow "LID", and get the report. Extra points are awarded > if you are using a base station, and the repeater is less than twenty-five > air miles from you.

Morkie Step 18: Tell them YOU can't give an S-meter report since your radio only has "bars" in the display.

> Step Nineteen: Use the repeater for an hour or two at a time, preventing > others from using it. Better yet, do it on a daily basis. Your quest is to > make people so sick of hearing your voice every time they turn on their > radio, they'll move to another frequency. This way you'll lighten the load > on the repeater, leaving even more time for you to talk on it.

Morkie Step 19: Remember to include topics of conversation like your deviant bedroom behaviour, how you've been able to dodge those pesky investigators, and how you hope the mailman doesn't take till 3 in the afternoon to get your check in on the first.

> Step Twenty: See just how much flutter you can generate by operating at > handheld power levels too far away from the repeater. Engage people in > conversations when you know they wont be able to copy half of what your > saying. Even when they say your uncopyable, continue to string them along > by making further transmissions. See just how frustrated you can make the > other amateur before he finally signs off in disgust.

Morkie Step 20: Refer to Morkie Step 8 when doing this. Be just close enough to the repeater to prevent people who can really help from getting in, but allow you to dominate the receiver with crappy signal strength.

> Step Twenty One: Use lots of radio jargon. After all, it makes you feel > important using words ordinary people don't say. Who cares if it makes you > sound like you just fell off Channel 19 on the citizen's Band? Use phrases > such as "Roger on that", "10-4", "I'm on the side", "Your making the trip" > and "Negatory on that".

Morkie Step 21: This will be a breeze. You've had several sockpuppet QSO's on RRAP in CB jargon that you can just quote from some of your postings...We'll all be impressed! Especially if you can read your own "writing".....

> Step Twenty Two: Use excessive microphone gain. See just how loud you can > make your audio. Make sure the audio gain is so high that other amateurs > can hear any bugs crawling on your floor. If mobile, make sure the wind > noise is loud enough that others have to strain to pick your words out > from all the racket.

Morkie Step 22: And remember to crank up the lean-yaar too.
Between the two, you'll trash repeaters for 100 kHz above and below
you.

> Step Twenty Three: Start every transmission with the word "Roger" or > "QSL". Sure, you don't need to acknowledge that you received the other > transmission in full. After all, you would simply ask for a repeat if you > missed something. But consider it your gift to the other amateur to give > him solace every few seconds that his transmissions are being received.

Morkie Step 23: Ignore this one too, Morkie. You have already demonstrated that you don't comprehend English very well, so we'd all know you were probably lying anyway.

> Step Twenty Four: When looking for a contact on a repeater, always say > your "listening" or "monitoring" multiple times. I've always found that at > least a half dozen times or so is good. Repeating your multiple > "listening" ID's every 10 to 15 seconds is even better. Those people who > didn't want to talk to you will eventually call you, hoping you'll go away > after you have finally made a contact.

Morkie Step 24: This probably won't work for Gavvie since he knows you'll be home sooner or later anyway...You can always tell him you never heard him, but since you've already admitted to being a chronic liar he's probably going to nail you with his rolling pin anyway.

> Step Twenty Five: Always use a repeater, even if you can work the other > station easily on simplex ... especially if you can make the contact on > simplex. The coverage of the repeater you use should be inversely > proportional to your distance from the other station.

Morkie Step 25: Refer to Morkie Step 12. Same theory.

> Step Twenty Six: When on repeaters using courtesy tones, you should always > say "over". Courtesy tones are designed to let everyone know when you have > unkeyed but don't let that stop you. Say "over", "back to you" or "go > ahead". It serves no useful purpose but don't worry, it's still fun!

Morkie Step 26: Don't forget "Roger, WILCO, Over and Out".

> Step Twenty Seven: Use the repeater's autopatch for frivolous routine > calls... especially during morning or evening commute times. While pulling > into the neighborhood, call home to let them know you'll be there in two > minutes.... or, call your spouse to complain about the bad day you had at > work. After all, the club has "measured rate" service on their phone line > so they get charged for each autopatch call. Your endeavor is to make so > many patches in a year that you cost the club at least $20 in phone bills.

> That way you'll feel you got your money's worth for your dues!

Morkie Step 27: Of course you will have used your "disabled" membership option, ergo you won't need to make nearly as many autopatches to get to that dollar amount, but go right on ahead and keep making them. Someone with a real job will be able to pitch in to the club coffers and make up the difference.

> Step Twenty Eight: Never say "My name is ....." It makes you sound human.
> If at all possible, use one of the following phrases: a) "The personal > here is ..." b) "The handle here is..."

Morkie Step 28: Don't forget "The first personal is..." That's even MORE impressive!

> Step Twenty Nine: Use "73" and "88" incorrectly. Both are already > considered plural, but add a "s" to the end anyway. Say "73's" or "88's".
> Who cares if it means "best regards" and "love and kisses." Better yet, > say "seventy thirds"! (By the way, seventy thirds equals about 23.3).

Morkie Step 29: What a coincidence, Morkie! "Seventy-thirds" just about equals YOUR IQ ! ! ! Who wudda thunk it...?!?!

> Step Thirty: If the repeater is off the air for service, complain about > the fact that it was off the air as soon as it's turned back on. Act as > though your entire day has been ruined because the repeater wasn't > available when you wanted to use it. Even thought you have never paid a > penny to help out with the upkeep of it.

Morkie Step 30: And do all of that from the overworn office chair you perch in while sitting right next to the telephone and your computer. Lord knows we don't want you to be uncomfortable.

How's that dental work, Morkie?

Doc give you yet another prescription for more narcotics?

The law allows me to refuse to care for persons for professional never do.

That's the reason I wouldn't take care of you. You're a sadist and

Hello. I'm Bill Crowell, W6WBJ, and I've been a ham for 47 years now. I'm a good operator, and I'm here to tell you that Riley Hollingsworth is full of shit. He HAS NOT designated my renewal application for a hearing; he just wanted to defame my by trying to make everyone THINK he had done so. If you carefully read the warning notice which he sent me, you'll note that it says, in pertinent part:

"the issue of renewal of your license has been referred for designation of a hearing"

What this means is:

(1) it hasn't been designated for a hearing yet. It's merely been "referred" for such a designation. No hearing date has been set, nor is it clear that one will EVER be set.

(2) "referred for designation" simply means that Riley the bullshit artist has asked his superiors for permission to take my case to a hearing. It is by no means clear that they will grant his request. Hearings are expensive, and there is no reason to take me to a hearing because I've done nothing wrong. Indeed, judging by the passage of time since he sent me my warning notice, with no hearing deisgnation order yet issued, it looks increasingly unlikely that such permission has been granted.

What we have here, gentlemen, is another example of Riley Hollywood pulling the wool over your eyse by trying to make it appear that he is taking me to a hearing, when in fact he has not done so. You have been used. Abused. When are you going to wake up to what a dirty son of a bitch old Riley is?

Ahem...three things as I saw them, Brian:

1. That "they [FCC] MIGHT just as well eliminate writtens" was such a COMMON rejoinder by pro-coders that it became another myth in the minds of the 1930s-standards-retro folk. To them everything was about the code test.

2. Miccolis has, by his tacit admission (and self-praise) never ever done anything wrong nor ever expressed a bad attitude (dictated by the Elders of the Church of St. Hiram). Why, if pinned to the wall by someone, he will self-righteously (and in 'outrage') demand for 'proof' by going into thousands upon thousands of old, old Google archives and copying the 'proof.' [AS IF this was evidenciary in some mythical court of law]

3. Several others well back before 1998 were using the general remark of "if the code test is eliminated, then the writtens will be 'next' because it 'follows the progression.'" Miccolis picked up on that, reworded it, but repeated it...apparently making certain he couldn't be found 'guilty' of EXACT wording.

>> as do most of the ProCoders that the >> NoCode would be followed your proposal to end testing
>They think that there might as well be no testing at all now that the >code exam is gone. They sure don't value the writtens very much, do >they?

To the pro-coders EVERYTHING in amateur radio was about morse code use, venerating the mode of on-off keying CW, and generally making them "masters of the radio waves" by their skill at a DEFUNCT radio communications mode once championed in the 1930s and 1940s.

The VEC QPC has made up ALL the written test elements for years but not a single pro-coder seems to admit to ever contacting the VEC QPC about that content...at least not in here. One reason (perhaps) is they don't give a damn about the writtens.
Everything is about morsemanship in operating on the ham bands to them.

>> we arre awaiting you ideas on the subject
>What ideas? He just wanted to dump the written.

In essence, that is true...despite Miccolis' denials. All the pro-coders were using the rationalization about the Archaic Radiotelegraphy Society (ARS) and the 'necessity' to keep code testing. Forever.

"Forever" is about to cease. The "End of the World As They Know It" is about to happen. Their sky will fall. Chickens Little will scamper about, shouting epithets and nastywords at evil, loathsome no-coders and the "failure" to "keep standards high"..."standards" that have been drilled into their psyches for decades by the Elders of Newington.

I've been gone for a few days, didn't hear about it until late Friday night and then only in a casual remark over a telephone call. Got on a friend's computer and saw that the End of Code Testing was the #1 news item on the FCC home page. [it doesn't appear on the Amateur page under Wireless Bureau, but then little happens there in keeping up to date] Wonder upon wonders! :-)

Okay, now I'm reflecting about the GLORY of the democratic process in petitioning our government for a redress of grievances. IT WORKS! An agency of our government believed the words of our citizens in wanting change and is about to rule on that change. CHANGE will happen, despite the former ruling party of pro-coders' spitting and snarling about "spamming" the government with "anti-ham" attitudes wanting the code test gone. :-)

On more reflections, FCC 99-412, the R&O establishing the Restructuring of 2000, was released on 30 Dec 1999. I wouldn't be surprised if the FCC releases the R&O on code testing elimination about that same date...the news release (not a law, just a 'media advisory') was done on 15 Dec 2006, almost 7 years later. I think of it as a Christmas Present or the Start of a New Era along with a New Year. Glory in Excelsus!

Modernization is Happening in US amateur radio. Regs are finally catching up to late-1900s standards! [catching up, they will be approaching 1980 when the code elimination R&O is released]

Has No Code International "done anything?" Hard to tell. the www.nocode.org pages haven't been updated for a year. NCI is still talking about the NPRM of July 2005 in their 'Articles' section. But, I'm sure that NCI will praise itself after the fact...all their 'hard work' etc., etc., etc.

In my estimation, the Comments of CITIZENS on NPRM 05-143 did all the work in influencing our government on its announced decision. Power to the People! [but we still need electricity...]

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your
shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve

just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male

you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I
am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill
the time till the densit sees me

btw the more you refuse the more new threads

The toad is still here?

I have a question for marky What is
"Pob 212, PO BOX PoB212"?
A new postal address?

What does this mean?

"well IT is done aand I am starting to play first obviously on 10M but son others bands as no doubt one of the first of no code extras rotten time of year since there are few ve sessions round here " You're on 10 meters already? you are going to be an extra? You are one of the reasons most people wanted to keep cw. To keep people like you out

"You never asked someone who goes into areas of the internet that are only for adults who has an underage id somehow or another if they are a cop posing as an underage person online?

I guess lots of people just don't watch dateline or read stories much. Why don;t you go to pervertedjustice,com and see what they do. They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they lied to membners of the public.
They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they posed as an underage person and agreed to do all sorts of sex acts wioth adult males, and they are adults posing as teenager themselves. They make themsleves into liars by falsely impersonating underage persons and by not fuilfilling the words they tell the victims online in their chats. Why don't you read it where they tell these victims of their deceit about how they have been with grown men and such? Why don't you read it where they say, "That would be cool." after someone makes an advance towards an adult who is posing as a teenager? And, where they agree to meet the person, etc.
Lost control, didn't you?
Is that why you feel as if you need to lie so much now? I see where lots of these false impersonation games are not sticking. They feel as if they can lie and then order the victims to get counseling in the gayblade, governmental, pro-choice tax leech counseling centers. They are doing nothing more than usury and fraud in many cases." -- Wentzky almost comes out of the closet as a pedo/ephebophile in MID: <H%%Eg.28916$Uq1.22411@bignews6.bellsouth.net>

I am not in favor of a "No-Test" amateur radio service. Nor have I ever advocated such.

Anyone who says I have is mistaken - in error - just plain wrong.

Len, that's what you do. Not me.

The facts are what they are. You don't seem to like facts, Len, if they disprove your cherished opinions.

That has already happened.

In 2000, the written testing for the three classes of license still available was reduced significantly.

Yet that wasn't enough for some. At least one recent proposal (NCVEC's second proposal) claimed the 35 question multiple-choice Technician was 'too hard' and that a new license class with even less written testing is needed.

Show us.

Pointing out that the written requirements have been reduced is not the same thing as advocating a 'no test' amateur radio service. Not the same thing at all.

I'm as pro-code-test as they come, and I do not think that at all.

And the Morse Code test in the USA isn't gone yet. It will take a few weeks at most for the bureaucratic wheels to turn and make the change effective.

Not true at all. There's a lot to amateur radio besides Morse Code.
Which is not 'defunct' at all.

That doesn't mean it hasn't happened.

Even if true - what's wrong with that?

If you are really only against the test, what's wrong with using Morse Code?

No, not at all.

It's just another bad decision by FCC. They make some good decisions and some bad decisions. Do you think their BPL decisions are good ones?

Guess who broke the news here on rrap, Len, by starting this thread?

Not really.

A majority of those who commented on the Morse Code test issue wanted at least some Morse Code testing to remain. The majority did not want complete elimination.

Yet FCC ignored the majority and will completely eliminate Morse Code testing very soon.

Explain how ignoring the majority means "IT WORKS".

Your wordy piles of commentary to FCC amounted to spam, Len, and probably slowed down the process.

The announcement was made at the end of the business day on a Friday.
That way FCC doesn't have to deal with the responses right away.

A majority of "the People" did not want complete Morse Code test elimination, Len.

FCC gave "the People" what they did not want.

--

In a few days the official Report and Order will be released, and in a few weeks it will be effective. The only surprise is how long it has taken for FCC to make the change. Three and a half years since the treaty changed!

And once the Morse Code test is completely gone, what will you do, Len?
You won't have anything to carry on about on rrap anymore.

well so much for anyclaim Morse Code testing produces better peopel as war?

and the posting seemingly forgets in making this claim "Apparently the order came without even following usual NPRM protocol." that last jully the FCC release it NPRM on this very subject wherein it rejected the idea of retaining Code testing for the extra class as proposed by the ARRL when the writting became clear on HF in General so to say and that the FCC in jul 2005 stated it proposal to end code testing in the ars some 6000 coment weere filed another smal the pressrelase on the R&O was made on the 15 dec 2006

not the 18th

and the statement that NoCode has been unopposed for the past 20 years? LOL has this loon been on some other planet hell he would have to read RRAP a few time over the years to know that the ProCode postition has been alive loud and in the NoCoders faces (as well as trying to crawl thought their lives in some cases loking for materail to blackmail them with) this Said I certainlly support right to try at this late date to organize and petion the FCC first to recosider its desicsion and then when as is like that fails to pertion the FCC with RM petions calling for renwed code testing. I doubt they will have any real sucess but hat is thweir constitutionaly protected right

1. Who won the pool?

2. It will be interesting to follow the numbers on the licenses. Please give consideration to either excluding the Novice license class entirely or reporting it as a separate item. This puts a different light on the so-called decline of amateur radio. This group is almost entirely inactive, not renewing, and not relevant to the growth or decline of amateur radio anymore.

Also it might be interesting if you post three sets of numbers:

1. As of May 2000 as you have been doing.
2. As of the effective date of the implementation of no-code testing.
3. The current number of licensees.

My predictions are that there will be numerous upgrades but little to no impact on the overall growth of ham radio.

Kwanzaa is from a Swahili word, "Kwanza", which mean first which comes from the phrase "Matunda Ya Kwanza" which translate as "First Fights."

Kwanzaa start on Dec 26 and Omega One Radio will help selibrate it by playing Kwanzaa fight music all day. Be sure and listen and send us signal report for a nice Kwanza qsl card back from us.

In meantime, happy Kwanzaa and merry Christmas!!

It's 100% official:

http://hraunfoss.fcc.gov/edocs_public/attachmatch/FCC-06-178A1.pdf

High points:

1) Element 1 is completely removed as a license test requirement.

2) All Technicians and Technician Pluses, regardless of code-test status, get Novice/Tech Plus HF privileges.

3) No other licensees gain or lose any privileges.

4) Except for removal of references to Element 1, no changes to written tests or license credits.

5) Changes go into effect 30 days after the R&O is published in the Federal Register. That means no sooner than Jan 19, 2007, and possibly somewhat later.

6) The 80 meter automated data subband moves from 3620-3635 to 3585-3600 kHz, as requested by ARRL in their recent Petition for Reconsideration, correcting an obvious mistake in the previous R&O. No other obvious typos or oversights.

Some observations:

- The elimination of Element 1 will allow non-Morse-Code-tested Technicians on parts of four HF amateur bands. Ironically, most of those HF privileges will be Morse Code.

- The role of CSCEs will be greatly decreased. Unless the written exams are not passed in order, passing any exam results in an upgrade. All CSCEs will do in the future is to allow immediate use of new privs for the short time until the FCC database is updated, and in the case where someone passes Element 3 without passing Element 2, or passes Element 4 without passing both Element 2 and Element 3.

- While there may be one or more Petitions for Reconsideration, IMHO the FCC will simply deny them.

Looking at an Icom Band limits chart, you can essentially operate CW anywhere (if you are an extra) from 14 MHz to 14.350 MHz. There are SSB/SSTV/Fax limitations, but it would seem that CW may be used anywhere

Spend less time whining in on usenet and more time studying to pass a license exam, and you'll be able to DX all you want. Shoving a microphone in your face
isn't a right. It's a privledge. Get off your keyboard and go earn it.

And please stop crossposting this crap to the DX newsgroup.

->I agree. But it does show some form of discipline wouldn't you say?
->If someone takes the time and puts in the work to learn the code he is
->less likely to blow it on the air.
-Amateurs can not be tested for discipline or work ethic
-or motivation. If thats the remaining rational for CW
-testing, then the government has no basis for keeping
-it as a requirement.

Amateurs CAN NOT or SHOULD NOT? Certainly they CAN be tested.
Why doesn't the government have any basis for keeping the requirement if it is only for testing discipline? Please give a real, rational answer.

->Yes I know that there are lots of
->Extra Class hams who blow it, just read QST.
-Exactly.

Yes, and last year nine people received NALs here in my area. Of those nine Amateurs six were Tech, one was Tech+, one was General and one was Advanced. Five of them were licensed less than a year and one had been a ham FIFTEEN years (the General). Most were for malicious interference on a repeater. Two of the Techs and the General were caught using their ham gear on frequencies outside the amateur bands. I think the

Advanced was NALed for not identifying and interfering with an HF net.
I think

we also had a Novice NALed for using excessive power but he was just "slapped"
and nothing else came of it. So the CW test won't prevent one from being an idiot on the air but look at the ratio of no-code tested to code tested NALs.

<snip>

->No a dislike of CW doesn't make one lazy but wanting to have the same privileges
->of one who has taken the CW test without taking it is laziness and/or

->gimme something for nothing.
-Based on that logic, we should still be testing for vacuum
-tube theory as part of the theory testing.

I see no problem with a few questions on tube theory. There are many applications
where solid state is not yet practical or still extremely expensive.
Have you seen the price on a 1.5KW solid state amp vs. the price on a tube one? Have you even seen a 1.5KW solid state amp? One of our local radio stations' auxillary transmitter is a 2KW solid state LF amp. It ran in the neighborhood of $9K, but it is a "commercial" amp which tripples the price anyway. As long as tubes have a place in Amateur Radio operations their theory should be tested.

-><retesting agreements snipped>
->-...that there are deficiencies in the written tests does NOT justify
the
->-continuance
->-of an outdated, irrelevant Morse test. If the problem is the written tests,
->-let's fix the problem ...
->One has little or nothing to do with the other. I think that the written
->tests need to be changed AND the code tests need to stay. I think it should
->be back to unpublished tests and one minute solid copy.
-Of what benefit would one minute solid copy testing
-gain anyone?

I'll answer your question with a question -- what is the harm? Most anyone with minimal copying skills can copy enough CW to pass a 10 question test but you have to really master CW to be able to pass a minute or so perfectly.

Do we want minimally qualified individuals or well qualified individuals?
This applies to anything, not just CW testing. If the written "tests" were not published I know that those passing the tests would be much more qualified to be Amateur Radio
operators than those who are passing them today.
But then who's the government to tell us who is qualified and who isn't? :-/

->-> -> At least CW requires some work and effort to do well.
->-> -
->-> -There's that "work ethic" thing again ... it has NO place in government
->-> -licensing. I don't give a crap if anyone ever "works hard" ...
if space
->-> -aliens came down and beamed the necessary knowledge into your

->-> -without one iota of effort on your part, you'd STILL be qualified

->-> -"knew the stuff."
->->
->-> So tell me Carl what's wrong with a little "work ethic?" There are lots
->-> of privileges that require work to access. Most of which ARE imposed by
->-> the government at various levels.
-Such as?

See below. -- plumber, electrician....

->-Name one ... the government requires licensing for many trade/professions
->-but in most cases they just require you to pass a test of knowledge in the ->-area ... they don't care if you worked years or speed-read the manual on
->-the way in the door or if you never read it ... as long as you pass the test,
->-you get the license. So it's not a question of demanding work ...
it's a ->-question of demonstrating a specified level of technical knowledge by passing
->-the test ... period.
->I'll name several --

->Plumber requires several years apprenticeship before licensing
->Electrician same as plumber
-Actually, these trades vary greatly from state to state. Many -states require only the license as demonstrated by passing a test,
-no apprenticeship needed. In any case... passing a CW test
-is not at all similar to an apprenticeship.

I never said it was. The original question from Carl (above) was about government imposing "work" on those who want to be in a trade as a condition of licensing. I provided several, and yes they have nothing to do with ham radio but my point was made. Government DOES post

"work ethic" type situations as a condition of licensing.

->Doctor several years residency before licensing
->Dentist same as doctor
->Vet same as doctor
-Any comparison to the art of medicine with
-an amateur radio license is certainly a far fetched
-analogy.

There was no comparison to Amateur Radio, you are reading things into my answers to make them non sequitur. The answers, as I explained above, were in response to Carl's assertion that the government doesn't pose "work ethic" situations as a condition of licensing -- it does.

->Some have called it indentured servitude but it is necessary to insure
->qualified persons in practice. Please don't bring up the argument ->that CW testing means nothing towards technical competence. I agree that
->it doesn't but it is part of the rules that the government chooses to

->post upon us if we wish to become Amateur Radio operators.
-And the rules can be changed, have been changed and
-will change again. Do you dispute the right of those that
-wish to foster such change to make their case, spread the -message, etc?

I agree that the rules have been changed and will change and we have the right to change them. But change for the sake of change is rarely good. Relaxing the rules is rarely a good change.

->-> The first autombile in Wilson county (my county) was in 1902. The basic
->-> technology of the internal-combustion engine hasn't changed since its

->-> invention in the late 1800's.
->-Really???? I remember when cars got 7-8 mpg and nobody thought a thing
->-about emissions ... today's cars are lighter, faster, far more fuel-efficient,
->-and output a minute fraction of the emissions of the cars of the 50's.
->-OOK Morse is essentially unchanged from well before the 50's ...
->No the basic principles haven't changed only the methods of transmission
->and reception. The basic principles of the internal combustion engine
->haven't changed only the method of fuel delivery, mixture and burning.
-Any comparison to the internal combustion engine is -also bogus. Today the internal combustion engine is still
-the mass mover of people, that can't be said for CW
-as being anything but a minor communication mode.
-THAT is why the testing is no longer relavent.

There you go again. The internal combustion engine has nothing to do with Amateur Radio. The analogy was, again, to show Carl that just because something has been around for a very long time doesn't make it "out of date." You are very good at reading into things.

->-> So since the FCC Part 97 requires that an amateur operator be technically ->-> competent it can't require that he be proficient in CW also? Why
one
->-> and not the other? (Real answer Carl)
->-Because one is relevant in today's world and the other isn't. In the
->-absence of a compelling reason to require Morse (which ceased to exist
->-decades ago) the "requirement" should be dropped.
->It's only irrelevant if you choose to make it so. Thousands, if not
->hundreds of thousands, of radio amateurs around the world use it regularly.
->It still saves lives Carl.
-When was the last time it saved a life?

It saved my life and the life of a young girl named Shelly. I won't give all the details again because I have already explained it to Carl. We were stranded

in the middle of a flooded river while I was in the midst of a rescue of a group of high-school kids at a flooded campsite. We were washed into the river
by a large swell and swept several hundred yards down stream which destroyed the speaker and microphone on my HT. I had to use CW to give our location using the touch-tone pad. A few minutes after we were rescued the tree on which were stranded broke apart and was swept down stream.

-The fact that thousands
-use CW isn't a reason to mandate that everyone who wants to -be a ham must be able to use that mode. Thousands of hams
-use Spanish yet we don't require an ability to know Spanish (or -any other language).

More hams use English than any other language too. Many countries require English to be taught in school but that's beside the point. But then why should we do what other countries are doing? Other countries are dropping

-Hi Kevin, are you saying Dr. Williamson, PhD in EE, is more likely to "blow

-it" on the air than someone who knows Morse code?

Who is this person you keep throwing into your arguments?
I know a lot of fools who have PhDs in something or other, not to say that Dr. Williamson is a fool. Just having PhD after you name doesn't tell me that he is responsible and wouldn't blow it on the air. One of the hams in my area who received an NAL last year was a Tech with a PhD in physics. I'll agree that the CW test is not a perfect LID filter,

it's more like a sieve. Of course as you stated in other posts you have VEs where he could buy a license. Why don't you just have him do that?

Last year nine hams received NALs here in my area. Of those nine hams six were Tech, one was Tech+, one was General and one was Advanced.
Five of them were licensed less than a year and one had been a ham FIFTEEN years (the General). Most were for malicious interference on a repeater. Two of the Techs and the General were caught using their ham gear on frequencies outside the amateur bands. I think the Advanced was NALed for not identifying and interfering with an HF net. I think we also had a Novice NALed for using excessive power but he was just "slapped" and nothing else came of it. So the CW test won't prevent one from being an idiot on the air but look at the ratio of no-code tested to code tested NALs.

-> Some have called it indentured servitude but it is necessary to insure
-> qualified persons in practice.
-But Kevin, the people you listed could be dangerous to life and property
-if they are not properly trained in their fields. Can a doctor get a -waiver for his residency? The fact that there exists a code waiver is -proof positive that Morse code is not a requirement to be an HF ham.

You can't, to my knowledge, get a waver for CW if you want HF access.
If you are profoundly disabled the VE will come to you and you may be exempted from the CW test but you will only receive a Tech license.

-> Please don't bring up the argument
-> that CW testing means nothing towards technical competence. I agree
that
-> it doesn't but it is part of the rules that the government chooses
to
-> post upon us if we wish to become Amateur Radio operators.
-Then I assume you have no objections to changing the rules which is all

-we are trying to accomplish.

But you want to change to make it easier, why does it need to be easier to become a ham?

-> It (CW) still saves lives Carl.
-Please provide some documented proof.

I have in other posts, read them. I won't waist bandwidth, in fact I'll
send the details directly to you.

-Would crash helmets for automobiles save lots more lives than Morse code?

It depends on where you live. In Queen Creek, AZ you probably don't need one. In Los Angeles, well....

-Do you wear one?

On my bike or on a horse, yes I do.

-Do you advocate mandatory laws for the wearing thereof?

On a bike (motorized or otherwise), yes.
-73, Cecil, W6RCA

Having a crash helmet law has nothing to do with having CW required for HF access. As you stated above in your ridicule of my analogy not requiring CW doesn't make ham radio more dangerous. Aren't we being a bit hypocritical Cecil?

Hans, he was making an implied point, all right. It is-- All hams who aren't into the chase to find the "most optimal mode" with the highest dB advantage over the last entrant are just not 'with' it and 'don't get' it. They believe we need a new "'tor-du-jour" for each and every "jour". Gary and crew won't rest easy until they have found the way to 'round-the-world maximum-throughput full-duplex zero-loss infinite-bandpass multi-modulation digital communications using an RF output of 0 dBm.

Heaven only knows what their challenge will be then.

Hey, I'm glad there are guys like that-the whole world benefits, but they needn't expect us all to be driven by their internal fires.

Meanwhile back in Hamradioland, most hams are still communicating and having large success, while having loads of fun at it......

Well maybee code should only be allowed with 1500 watt or higher powered transmitters on the 11 meter band!

Agreed ... different problem ... Morse testing is NOT the solution ...

It has no place in government regulations relative to access to public resources when the "work" require is irrelevant to the privileges granted. Even if the privilege were related to Morse testing, it wouldn't justify the government requiring "work" ... only knowledge would be a valid requirement, even if space aliens beamed it into your brain at night with no effort on your part, as long as you possessed the requisite, relevant knowledge, you should qualify for a license.

What is typical of the pro-code side is a bunch of ridiculous dogma that can't stand up to logic ... it is so ridiculous as to invite, even demand insult, just to show how ridiculous and absurd it truly
is ...

> No real intellectual argument so you have to insult me/us.

I and many others have given plenty of intelligent, intellectual arguments ... that you and your cronies are too dense to understand/see the validity of any of them or too narrow-minded to accept reality is YOUR problem, not mine ...

Yes it happens all the time and yes extras are caught too. Last year we

I think that retesting periodically is a great idea but I can't think of a good implementation. I can't see retesting 70k+ hams every year. If every ham must be retested at each renewal that's what would happen.

What's

I agree. The whining will continue and the FCC will cave. The same thing happens with every other government agency. They always cave to the very vocal minority just to shut them up. It has happened with every other minority up to date and ham radio no-code is just one of the latest. I think that the only thing that will "save" CW testing is the fact that the FCC and congress have better things to do right now.

-> While I'm all for it I can't think of a good implementation.
-It's really simple ... if you want to keep your ticket, you take the test.
-The VEs could even be allowed to increase their fees ... and it would be -REALLY great if we could get Congress to pass a law establishing a $100/year
-license fee, IF the funds were earmarked SOLELY for enforcement of ham rules
-and regulations in the ham bands.

Now there's a way to keep only the "elite" in ham radio. Who cares about
technical competence, if you have the cash you can have the ticket.
Real good Carl.

-You want "commitment" to ham radio? Put your money where your mouth
is!
-If you say you "can't afford" $100/year, you can't afford to be a ham.

I easily spend that (on average) each year just on equipment or parts to build equipment. There's that "if you got the cash you can be a ham" mentality. You sound like Cecil with his "buy the VE" mentality. I got into ham radio for less than $100 TOTAL, rigs, coax and antennas. I built my stuff (and still do for the most part). Besides, one good commercial rig will satisfy that $100/year for 20 years!

-> -> So tell me Carl what's wrong with a little "work ethic?" There

-All of those have some direct and profound impact on public safety
-and/or health ... to compare them to ham radio licensing is absurd
-in the extreme and you are intelligent enough to know that (though -not intellectually honest enough to admit it, apparently ...)

You sound like Cecil again. I NEVER said that plumbers and the like
have anything to do with ham radio. The analogy was in response to the statement

that the government doesn't require a "work ethic" to get a license, I just named five. Then you and Cecil say that they have nothing to do with ham radio just to divert to another topic and invalidate my response.

I agree that they have nothing to do with ham radio but they have everything to do with the government requiring work and testing for licensing in many cases. Try to get a manicure license without training and testing, now there's one that has lots to do with "public safety."

that many of their social issues are quite liberal but nowhere else

I don't have to justify their programming.

So how much should a non-profit organization have to pay?

No, Kev ... and if you check, you will find that I have supported proposals that would, as a compromise, maintain a 5 wpm test for full HF access, at least until such time as the ITU treaty requirement for (some) demonstration of Morse proficiency is eliminated.

Why not?

It's time to renew, you go to a VE session, and take the renewal test.
If you pass, your license is renewed, if you fail you go back to square

one and see what you can qualify for ... what's wrong with that? I have a problem with folks who are "extras" but haven't a clue about how anything not built with tubes works. Stagnation is not something that should be tolerated, since our charter exhorts us to experiment, self-educate,

and
expand the SOTA.

That's NOT what I said ... I said you would have to pass the test to renew.
As a separate issue, I said the VEs could increase fees if necessary
and that I'd like to see an annual license fee with the funds dedicated to FCC enforcement of the rules. Why do you try to cast that in some "sinister"
light?

My point is that cheapskates who would whine about an annual license fee that would support better enforcement are not as "dedicated" to ham radio as they would have everyone think ...

The above 3 are not in the same league as the others because of the following paragraph:

Not really ... the government doesn't "require work" in order to prove one's willingness to submit to a "work ethic" standard, it demands a demonstration of the requisite knowledge/skill that is reasonably required for licensing in areas that have direct and profound impact on the public safety/health.

I find on PBS ...

Actually, Kev, it's the Communications Act of 1934, not 1935, and it's current status is "as amended" ... which means all of the changes that have been incorporated since them ...

It's available from the GPO ...

Yeah, like combining the CW and theory elements so that if you still passed an average of so much you pass? You could effectively guess at the CW portion and still pass. That's not testing Carl. You might as well eliminate it now,
your proposal would be a waist of time for the VE to even grade the CW test.

There are an average of 3000 new hams tested each year. Can you imagine the workload increase if that were increased to 70000 hams? Get real Carl!

I quote "...and it would be REALLY great if we could get Congress to pass a law establishing a $100/year license fee...You want "commitment" to ham radio? Put your money where your mouth is! I you say you 'can't afford'
$100/year, you can't afford to be a ham."

So ham radio is for those who could afford to spend the $100 per year fee.
I don't think I spent $100 for the first TWO years I was a ham. I build my stuff from scratch. I was given my first rig (non working) and fixed it myself. I got on the air for maybe $20 including antennas. That can still be done today so there is NO justification for saying that if one cannot afford the $100 per year he has no business being a ham. You can't backpedal on this one Carl, here it is in black and white in your own words.

I have always thought that the FCC needs to be able to recover their costs of licensing but Congress feels otherwise. That's why we have the VE program, because the FCC can no longer afford to administer the tests themselves. I would have no problem with a testing fee that allowed the FCC to recover their costs.
I think that $10-$20 would be just fine but $1000 is ridiculous.

You're twisting the original question/answer again (still) Carl. But since you are so bent, let's just drop this part.

Sanitation has little to do with getting a manicurist's license. Yes it is taught but it has more to do with "getting it right." It has lots
to do with the physiology of the nails as to not damage the nail structure

during the grooming process. My neighbor runs such a school.

Sure frogs don't remember when they had the tails!
CW was there first and CW is allowed anywhere on Ham bands not the other way around. I can live with no-coders in peace as a die hard CW op. but why from time to time this kind of stupid provocative comment appears here and there?

I never bother with anyone who does not like code. Just leave me alone and let me enjoy one aspect of our hobby of many.
If you have nothing else to do other than making this kind of comment, go try to learn code(for a change which will never happen, hi) or do/learn something useful for your life/career. If still nothing else, go to sleep or eat something and keep the mouth shut.

You gotta be joking. SSB big gunner's splatter is 1000% worse than key clicks. You can technically prove it. Are you guys using A0 mode over there? Or what kind of RX are you using? Ancient 0-V-2?
I always self monitor my signal thru my back up RX.

I agree that it's a waste, 'cause there's no justification for it, but I was
and still am willing to compromise at 5 wpm for full HF access.

There are also upgrade tests, too, not just brand-new hams ... let the VEs
charge a slightly higher fee to "make it worth their while" ... why not?

No backpedaling necessary ... you want a "demonstration of commitment" via your Protestant Work Ethic Crap ("be a nice Stepford Ham and learn your code") I'm suggesting that we'd ALL be better off with a moderately stiff license fee ... IF the money went to equally stiff enforcement.

I said $100 per year ... not $1000 ... in other words about what you'd pay for dinner for two and a couple of drinks at a nice restaurant ... if ham
radio is not "worth" that to you, you're not very dedicated. If you can't afford that, your financial situation is such that you ought to be spending your time on a second job, or schooling/training to get a better one, rather than wasting time and spectrum calling CQ DX or CQ Contest.

Damned few people could legitimately not afford $100 per year for a ham license ... like I said above, if you're that poor, you really should be concentrating on improving your lot in life, not playing games on the radio ...

Hello Dee,

An interesting question, but I am going to guess that it may have a positive impact - simply because folks that aren't licensed will hear that there is no more cw requirement. There are, I suspect, a fair number out there that haven't bothered simply because a tech license limits you to above 30 MHz and they want to work the world - without cw.

We should have the answer to the question in the next year or so. Like you, I suspect a fairly large number of upgrades; unlike you, I suspect there will be a modest impact in the growth of amateur radio.

Many don't understand the implications of learning something about electronics. A few years ago, I was given a Leslie speaker (rotating speaker used on Hammond organs) that was not compatable with my organs. It was obvious that not only would the socket have to be re-wired, but the new Leslie needed control via 110 volts ac. My control was high-impedance dc (about 90 volts dc).

I called the service guy. The estimate was 8 hours of labor (at $70.00 per hour), plus a new relay, tube, and other components.

After looking the situation over, I spent less than $5.00 in components, rewired the socket, isolated the dc with an interstage transformer, fed the dc to a big VFET through a 1 megohm resistor and zener to ground (to limit the voltage applied to the gate). The VFET switched 400 volts dc through a 100 k resistor to a solid state relay to the existing relay. The 110 volts was already present in the Leslie.

It has worked flawlessly for a few years now. 2 hours work and 5 bucks spent vs probably over $600.00.

Amateur radio was my background; hey, ya never know :P

2945. The Pool - And The Winnah Is.....?

Here's an update on the "when will FCC drop Element 1?" pool.
This means the effective date of the FCC action that completely eliminates Morse Code testing for any class of amateur radio license in the USA.

Note how almost all the predicted dates, including both of mine, have already passed:

WA2SI: September 13, 2003 (first prediction)
KF6TPT: September 29, 2003
KC8EPO: December 31, 2003
K2UNK: January 1, 2004 (first prediction)
K2ASP: March 15, 2004
AA2QA: April 1, 2004
N2EY: April 15, 2004
N3KIP: May 1, 2004 (first prediction)
KC8PMX: July 1, 2004
WA2ISE: August 1, 2004
K3LT: September 15, 2004
WK3C: December 30, 2004
N4PGW: May 22, 2005
N8UZE: July 1, 2005 (first prediction)
N3KIP: December 31, 2005 (second prediction)
N8UZE: January 31, 2006 (second prediction)
N2EY: March 1, 2006 (second prediction)
KB9RQZ: April 1, 2006
K2UNK: July 1, 2006 (second prediction)
AB2RC: July 1, 2007
KB3EIA: July 5, 2007
W5TIT: June 1, 2008
WA2SI: Complete elimination not within the foreseeable future (second prediction)

Right now it looks like AB2RC is the winner, with K2UNK a close second.
Even though K2UNK's date is closer to the announcement date, the rule states "effective date of the FCC action that completely eliminates Morse Code testing for any class of amateur radio license in the USA".
Which cannot be any earlier than January 19, 2007.

I intend to report all current, unexpired FCC amateur radio licenses held by individuals, sorted by license class. I also intend to include the May 14, 2000 numbers and the numbers from the effective date of the R&O.

Three sets of numbers, but only one set will change.

> My predictions are that there will be numerous upgrades but little to no > impact on the overall growth of ham radio.

We'll see. For a few years after the 2000 restructuring we saw growth, but since then we have seen more decline.

The Novice class, IMHO, consists of three groups:

1) A small number of active hams

2) An unknown number of inactive hams who haven't got the word yet, haven't gotten around to upgrading, or who are waiting for a no-test upgrade.

3) An unknown number of totally inactive hams who will disappear from the database once their licenses expire.

While 2) may seem unrealistic, even today I encounter hams who either don't know about or don't understand the 2000 restructuring. I also encounter amateurs who think that their Advanced will soon be auto-upgraded to Extra, or their Tech Plus to General, even though FCC has repeatedly denied proposals to do such things.

It will be interesting to see if this proves true. I know of many people who have no idea what the requirements are to get a ham license. Matter of fact most have no idea that ham radio exists. Therefore the code requirement was not a factor. I have yet to meet anyone who said that they had an interest but did not pursue it because of the code requirement.

While some of the hams I know could and would do the same, the majority have chosen not to explore electronics beyond what they had to do for the test.
That isn't sufficient to enble them to venture into this type of activity.

You could be right. It's simply my opinion that 3) represents the vast majority of Novice licensees. I've met no Novice operators on the bands and our club roster has no Novice licensees.

Hello Dee,

I swear I am going to apply for WN2CJV, my first license. I still have the license.

"Slow Code" is an artifact from the chicken little syndrome.

A good decision.

True enough. And the Code Free HF license with almost exclusively CW priveleges is an artifact of the piecemeal approach that the FCC uses WRT the ARS.

There are no speed limits for Novices, but there are for higher class hams who have IDers on repeaters.

Hello Dee,

No game plan; I've gone back to 5 wpm before. I used to have a lot of fun when I was on Guam. We had a 40 meter vertical that couldn't be beat. A tower section 30 feet high on an insulator.

I used to go down into the novice band. It was a lot of fun. One guy called me from New Jersey. He called "W2AAY de WN2". I corrected him on the call. His fist got shakey. "W6AAY de WN2". Finally I told him he had the call wrong. DE GUAM ISLAND, KG6AAY". You've never heard a fist get that bad in a hurry as he was so nervous. It was a lot of fun, however. At five words per minute.

When one has a Collins S-Line into a Henry 2K amp into a vertical over salt water ..... no measurable reflected power ... and running maximum legal power ... and a 200 Hz crystal filter .... I could hear him just fine and the big rig simply pushed a signal through everything ...

Well, we had a lot of fun ;)

Seriously, I do enjoy cw contacts with newcomers. I also have the ability to deal with the folks that are hard-core cw folks. We had one guy on a 440 MHz repeater that was complaining that CW was the only way to go. Fortunately, the owner of the repeater was in the group. I've known him since 1963. I simply asked for permission to use F-2 modulation.

After receiving permission, I hit the guy with 40 words per minute CW. Case made, case closed. Tim, WB2KAO, the repeater owner got a bit of a charge out of that LOL :)

Well, damnitall, some under-appreciative numbnuts failed to second my nomination of you, so you get nothing at all beyond the Pineapple. I guess your k00kery just isn't all that outstanding.

Well, it's not that extreme. Is AM gone? (No, it just isn't very popular among the current crowd.)

Is RTTY gone? (No, it just isn't very popular among the current crowd.)

Is packet gone? (No, it just ... etc, etc, etc)

I'm going to quit now before I get too obvious :-)

AMEN!!!!!

"It's all been seen before" is just bunkum. My PSK31 cables are new to me. My EME dish is new to me.

Fortunately, nobody gets a lock on first-time discoveries in this hobby. My pulling a QSO out of the noise today is just as much a thrill for me as it is for another half-million or so hams when they do it.

I'm working on my first HF antenna. Hand-built for 10M, it will be -- and on the air as soon as I'm legal.

Speaking of legal, when I'm doing low-power antenna tests for matching, what's the protocol for ID'ing? My antenna experience is limited to FM, where I easily ID through the mike with one hand while twiddling the SWR meter with the other.

However, if I steady-key on HF to measure VSWR, I obviously can't ID; if I use voice, the needle's bouncing.

Does the HF community tolerate occasional non-ID'ed transmissions for essential testing????

From the NCI bylaws posted at http://www.nocode.org

"The Board shall annually elect an Executive Director from among its members by a majority vote. This election shall be held annually during the first week of May, for the following year."

"The Executive Director’s term shall be for one year. The Executive Director shall serve for a maximum of three consecutive elected terms."

They must use an odd calendar over there at NCI, because Carl Stevenson has been Executive Director for around six years now, twice the "maximum of three" laid out in their rules. Is there anything else about their organization that they'd like us to believe is true?

I didn't mean CW was "gone" in the sense of no longer able to be used! I meant only in the "testing" - which has spawned months if not years of hateful arguments - so it is pointless to remain at odds with others over it. Sure - CW, AM, RTTY, etc - are still all there to be used and enjoyed by those with personal preference. And as well - they should be! Use them to your hearts content!

Yes, there are limits on the speeds of IDs on a repeater. There are no limits should someone decide to use F2 (or whatever one wishes to call it these days) on a repeater LOL. You may be aware of the meteor burst cw stuff going on at a few hundred words per minute, but I'm talking manual reception of CW.

I can't claim to run 50 words per minute anymore, but I don't have much trouble at 35. Besides, the callsign would not make me a novice. The novice class is closed to new applicants. I can apply, however, for a vanity sign as a former call sign holder :D

Believe me, I hit one guy big time who was screaming that only cw operators are the good guys. I hit him with 40 plus words per minute F-2 on the WB2KAO repeater in Rochester, NY (with permission from the repeater owner who just happened to be in the group LOL) ps - I run from 5 words per minute to a bit over 7 .... quite a bit :))

It's not a matter of what we tolerate. It is a matter of FCC rules. Even a test transmission (including tune-up) must conclude with an ID. So you tune, then ID.

You are confusing the various R&O. The reduction in CW space for Generals and Advanced on 80m is in the one that was published in the Federal Register in November and became effective on December 15. The one dropping the code requirement (thus making Tech and Tech Plus the same) has just been announced, has not been published in the Federal Register and so is not yet effective. This latter one had NO effect on the CW space allocated to Generals/Advanced.

From FCC Part 97

(b) In addition to one-way transmissions specifically authorized elsewhere in this Part, an amateur station may transmit the following types of one-way communications:

(1) Brief transmissions necessary to make adjustments to the station;
97.119 Station identification.
(a) Each amateur station, except a space station or telecommand station, must transmit its assigned call sign on its transmitting channel at the end of each communication, and at least every ten minutes during a communication, for the purpose of clearly making the source of the transmissions from the station known to those receiving the transmissions.

So you have 10 minutes before u need ID

Obviously you don't, Brian.

However yo DO gain some sort of twisted satisfaction from making assertions of one sort only to have people follow up on i9t and see that you're either lying or have some awfully distorted vision.

I lean towards lying.

But what's new?

"So you have 10 minutes before u need ID "

This is true, but I always begin and end a tuning or test transmission with "N3OX TESTING" in fast CW.

It will make those who hear your 1W loud and clear happier. They'll know someone is running tests instead of just sitting on their key.

No it made me go down to RadiShack and show one more time how to "lock" it. Use the MENU key first and tab thru its various offerings until you reachthe "lock" key. It was so tiny and did'nt look like a lock key, just a black spot on the top of the screen. So now I got it locked and alls well.

Brian, we have to quit trying to make Miccolis admit to doing wrong. Miccolis "never" does wrong. He is a morse-tested amateur extra...ergo, he never has done anything wrong. :-)

Tsk, nobody admits to the "follow-on" of "[they] might just as well eliminate the writtens." :-)

Nobody admits to having written that so - in their mind - they never wrote it. :-)

Heh heh heh...I'm more like good old Marty Luther, he what hammered up his Theses on the front doors of his church.

Tsk, tsk, Miccolis was merely some germ plasm when I first fired up a KW on HF...but, having studied in the "seminary" of the Church of St. Hiram, he now feels he is a "father" in that Order. Heh heh heh heh heh. More like "mother."

Brian, I think it should be worded "some stupids think they know 'facts'" but those 'facts' are just very selected little items of information which said stupids then use to make their point. Erroneous use of such selected quanta.

However one wants to quibble about Pres Ronnie, he has one heck of nice Presidential Library on the west side of Simi Valley, CA. Beautiful in fact. Even better with the Air Force One Exhibit which opened earlier this year. Very impressive.

Miccolis uses "reduced 'significantly'" as if the "significant" amounted to nearly half. NEVER so. He exaggerates more than "significantly." :-)

[Out of 41 pages of FCC 06-178, only 20 pages concern the R&O itself...the remaining half is a listing of ALL who commented on the NPRM...if Miccolis read, really read, not just skimming, even a tenth of those comments, I would be surprised...I read ALL of them and keep them on a CD]
As far as a "statistical fact," Miccolis cribbed right from Joe Speroni's website, inferring he did the stat summary (after the fact) but he never did a day-by-day collection and running status of opinions as I did (posting them in this newsgroup).

As a point of FACT, Part 97, Title 47 C.F.R. has included the rule ONLY ON A MINIMUM NUMBER of questions in the written test pool. That since privatized testing began. At present, the VEC Question Pool Committee ONLY makes the MINIMUM number of questions. There's NO LIMIT on what the VEC QPC could legally and rightly produce, plus no real problem on distribution of the QP to outlying VEC locations electronically.

True. Never was the intention of that Class. However, its growth (since 1991) has been so enormous that it is way more populous than any other US amateur radio license class.
Lots of folks have been calling the Tech license "entry level"
because that is what it has become in recent years.

Poor Jimmie, he's been sipping at the sour grapes again. :-)

"Outraged" Miccolis always DEMANDS that any challenger (to his noble-godlike opinions) SHOW EVERYONE EXACTLY where Miccolis wrote something in the past. If we don't bother with redux-infinity quoting His Words, he feels "vindicated" (if not smug and triumphant). [see, he never wrote anything that his accusers say he did...therefore he never did!] :-)

AB-SO-LUTELY sayeth all the pro-coders, practically en masse.

The pro-coders did it so "everybody" can do it!

As usual, the morsemen think of themselves as Role Model for the US amateur radio service. As such, they had all the courage/gumption/smarts/aptitude to be extra-super-special morsemen. All who didn't do as They did are "lazy" and/or "stupid." :-)

If the times were of the 1930s and 1940s they would be correct. However, we are living now 70+ years AFTER that time.

Miccolis will NEVER admit to any such thing! :-)

We will now be treated to some "outraged demands" to "show everyone 'EXACTLY' what Jimmie wrote!" :-)

He wants ATTENTION and misdirection both...trotting out old outdated arguments of the past, perhaps hoping to "win" one years later.

Miccolis USES morse code regularly. He champions that singular mode. He must feel that "all" amateurs must do as he does and is pissed that all do NOT. Tsk, tsk.

Tsk, Jimmie is doing the finger-pointing misdirection thing again...and FAILING to acknowledge his 'brethren' in the code wars who (almost daily) commit atrocities of personal insults and BRAGS of things they can't prove.

Hmmm..."It ain't braggin' if ya done it" was (at one time) a Miccolis standard rejoinder in here...it being a slight mis-quote of what baseball player Dizzy Dean once said. Problem is, Miccolis hardly ever gets specific on what he does so he claims to look blameless in the bragging department! :-)

WE KNOW that Miccolis doesn't "tell us everything." :-)

"The Amateur's Code" was written in the late 1920s(?) and code was king on the few ham bands existing in the 1930s and 1940s. Ahem...I almost hate to tell Jimmie that time now is 70 or so years LATER... :-)

>> If you are really only against the test, what's wrong with using

>
>It's perfectly legal.

Of course it is legal. But Miccolis INFERRED that no-code-test advocates were "against the USE" of morse code. It is a nice tactic to divert blame or at least to infer it being on the other person.

Hmmm...it must be made of fireproof straw since its been set afire time after time. :-)

"Untru"? :-)

Only in a witches coven are the 'spellers' worthy of being leaders. :-)

Actually, Radio Regulation S25...most of it got revised 3 1/2 years ago at WRC-03. That included the artifact of all nations having to test radio amateur license applicants for morse code ability for any license privileges below 30 MHz. The IARU promoted it. ARRL did NOT. And that is historical fact of 3 1/2 years ago.

Wince Ficus is one story, Miccolis is another. Both have been brainwashed and don't see it (conditioned thinking leaves that impression on the washed brains).

It is MODERNIZATION of some of the many USA civil radio regulations. By now Part 97 might be entering the world of about 1970... :-)

Good point, Brian. However, that came into being several years ago as a result of some relatively obscure lobbying efforts of some pro-coders. The FCC appeased those lobbyists by creating the code-only 6 and 2 meter band slivers.

>> Do you think their BPL decisions are good ones?

Tsk, more diversion from the subject. Broadband over Power Lines is NOT under discussion. BPL has NOTHING to do with code testing.

:-) I'd do a Robesin hyena laugh but that is unseemly. :-)

Given that Miccolis doesn't seem to do anything with his free time except haunt ham radio places, it's no wonder he hopped in here quick to "post the news." :-) <shrug>

The MEDIA NOTICE was posted on 15 Dec 06 and the R&O text was posted on 19 Dec 06...on the FCC website. It was there for all to see whenever they could get to that website. Some of us (in fact, MOST of us) also do other things and don't "live" in the ham bands nor have adopted some kind of Lifestyle of Everything Evolves Around Amateur Radio.

>> > Okay, now I'm reflecting about the GLORY of the democratic

Seems that way to me, too. I'm still a believer in the form of government we Americans have in the USA. So much so that I volunteered for military service during a time of war.
Miccolis never did such a thing. He can go to another country if he doesn't 'approve' of the USA.

DECISIONS on Reports and Orders aren't made by 'votes' on who comments on what and for which 'side.' All those DECISIONS in FCC 06-178 are clearly and unambiguously stated by the FCC in that Report and Order. [by the way, Brian, you are mentioned in it, footnote 48 on Page 8...:-)]

Report and Order DECISIONS are influenced by the REASONS presented by commenters (to NPRM 05-143). "Reasons" that have become mythos in US amateur radio of the 1930s do NOT necessarily apply in the year 2006.

There are several key points and brought out by the FCC in 06-178. Problem is, Miccolis has been taking in too much whine of the sour grapes to admit it. Tsk.

"Wha, wha, whaaaa" cried the imbiber of whine of sour grapes. Tsk, tsk.

There were some 3900 (give or take) commenters on NPRM
05-143 and all are listed on Pages 21 to 41 of 06-178.
Only ONE of them is me. :-)

:-) Not hardly. However, morsemen DO experience some strange "hardening of the arteries" supplying their brains.
Few are able to think beyond the 1930s and 1940s' standards and practices in AMATEUR radio. :-)

Jimmie tried to DIVERT the subject again. One of the basic parts of FCC 06-178 is the elimination of morse code TESTING. TESTING, not "use." Miccolis is loathe to admit that and inserts his little "bon mots" here and there to show "others" the error of their ways. :-)

How about that?!? :-) Them darn treaties just didn't give "the people" "what they wanted?!?" :-) Oh, my!

So, the International Amateur Radio Union - who prompted for the S25 rewrite were "WRONG" in Miccolis' estimation?

Sunnavagun! The "whole world" is "wrong" when the morse-men don't get their way! :-)

FCC 06-178 has NOT YET been published in the Federal Register (at least to 20 December 2006). Therefore nothing has changed in amateur radio up to that date. Why should any no-code-test advocate leave here? :-) Watching the morsemen get terrible hangovers from the whine of sour grapes is SO much fun! :-)

3049. A Christmas Present Everyone Can Afford

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as
follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

There really isn't anything new to comment on here or to "address"...It's the hate-hams against the pro-hams, and that's all that can be said.

Lennie is still licenseless and unlikely to obtain a license even under the new rules about to hit the street. His attacks are still anti-Amateur Radio in general and anti-Amateur operators in particular and will never be any different.

Brain's too wound up in trying to have ONE friend here that he keeps slapping Lennie on the back all-the-while Lennie's trying to slip a knife into his.

Ho hum....

So much for YOUR claim that you don't go off-topic on "legitimate" posts.

And considering you keep insisting you're a "legitimate" Veteran, I would have thought that the topic of this ONE thread would have been immune to your babblings.

I don't have to have other Veterans to make myself "look good", Morkie.

Since we have you trashing Christmas / Wounded Veterans threads, anything I could do here would pale in comparison.

I wondered if you had it in you to let that other thread go by,
but just like "Slow Code" said...You can't help yourself.

Let's see if you're man enough to leave it alone and stand on it's

Sure you do.

You've intentionally jammed a "send -a-vet-a-greeting thread 8 times in the last 30 minutes.

Seems we have Morkie Moron caught in yet ANOTHER lie!

I didn't say a word about myself, Morkie.

Here's what I DID say:

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

Because I DON'T post everyday, fatboy.

YOU are then one who claims I am "run off" all the time...So if I am "posting every day", why are YOU claiming that I am NOT...?!?!?

And the question YOU are avoiding is why are YOU not man enough to let the thread about sending wounded vets a greeting pass unmolested...?!?!

(Like I need to wonder why you wouldn't miss an opportunity to molest.......)

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

Yes that's quite correct. I was just making a general comment over the effect that the recent changes have on me. Being a CW ragchewer I'm happy to say that this new CW band loss won't affect me much since I seldom if ever used that upper part of the band. It's ironic though that if I had just kept my Novice license of 50 years ago I could have used it today and my present operation would be little changed. Course you couldn't keep a Novice license for more than a year in those days, so that's just wishful thinking... ;)

I think allowing all licenses on CW is a good idea. In fact I suggested exactly such a license change on this very group several years ago. You can guess what the response was. The population of the CW spectrum has been declining in recent years. And most of my QSOs are with hams well over 60. My theory is that the dead CW bands are due mostly to the dead CW hams. So I'm hoping that this change will help...

I never said you did, Morkie.

And WHY are yo AFRAID of this message?

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

The second R&O did not change the allocated band limits for Generals and Advanced. The number of users is another story but you know as well as I do that it won't happen. The Techs will upgrade to General and work the voice segments instead. Let's welcome those few who do undertake to use CW.

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

You're not a vet, Morkie...Either the animal care doctor type or one who served in the Armed Forces......

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

Now, now, Wabbit. Frogging and harassing Mark for daring to be an out bisexual while posting to your favourite ham radio group is rather lame and imbecilic, don't you think? OTOH, how is Mark forging and harassing anyone? The only real k00kiness which he's displayed, AFAIK, is spamming his "gte hlep" messages last summer. You, however, _are_ a k00k. You're insanely obsessed with Mark because he came out instead of giving in to blackmail, and you're just as obsessed with Lloyd Davies and others for various other reasons.

"Consider that language a moment. 'Purposefully and materially supported hostilities against the United States' is in the eye of the beholder, and this administration has proven itself to be astonishingly impatient with criticism of any kind. The broad powers given to Bush by this legislation allow him to capture, indefinitely detain, and refuse a hearing to any American citizen who speaks out against Iraq or any other part of the so-called 'War on Terror.'

"If you write a letter to the editor attacking Bush, you could be deemed as purposefully and materially supporting hostilities against the United States. And so it is particularly worrying that President Bush has seen fit, at this juncture to, in effect, declare himself dictator." -- Frank Morales

There's an idea, Morkie...Send a Christmas card all throught he
year....

Now...Stop jamming.

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

YOU posted in THIS FORUM that you had been hospitalized. You did so in a fit of anger and obviously thought it was going to be one more
"pity me" factor...It turned out to be a 'laugh at you" factor that you outted yourself AGAIN!

Idiot.

Forged letter of consent for WHAT, Morkie...?!?!

How can I submit a forged letter of consent for records that DON'T exist?

A consent for THOSE records would (at least for USN/USMC records) require a NOTARY PUBLIC's endorsement as to the authenticity of the requestor and a verified delivery address (NOT a POB)

That still doesn't answer what the "CilD" is/was, Morkie.

And you can tell the OSI, CIN, NIS, or whomever you care to tell that you think I stole some records of yours as it NEVER HAPPENED!

You're the one using them, Morkie.

I submitted a very sincere request that I received as an "FWD" in e-mail.

YOU have been using it as an excuse to attack ME all night.

Try leaving the solicitations unmolested and see how quickly the traffic goes down.

But like I said...It's NOT like you to miss an opportunity to molest......

QUOTE

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice they've made would be appropriate.

No one in my town submitted ANY request for ANY records of yours, Morkie...They couldn't...THEY DON'T EXIST.

Also, the government would be REQUIRED BY LAW to inform you that your records, if any, were released and to whom. Only records obtained under a sealed writ from a Grand Jury would be so exempt.

OF COURSE they're interested in "bothering".

Obtaining medical records by false pretense is a severe charge.
Even if it's for a dork like you, Morkie.

The PROBLEM is that your "records" DO NOT EXIST!

Steve decided to post some self serving spam trying to get his name assoicted with a nice thing although i t did amount to spam in the in NG being not in any way related to radio

I coment withou t changing his title that a beeter christmass deed might be apolgilizes to the vets he personal has been libeling (such as but not limited too myself

he then responded witha ttacing me perons with msr of his shit posts and ad spamming the NG witht the same offtopic spam (roughly 50 times in all)

Steve you need to learn for a singles statement to anykind of reposnse when repateaed over and over agin (as I have had to do you with you over the sheer volomue of your spam shit attacks) it has to related to materail your are responding in a general way and you need to stick to it

between the 2 of us only I have the displine to to stick this method of response you simply can't resist trying pile on new smears ans swipes while I need only respond

indeed the streagy was suggestion me by a ST:TNG episode by CMDR Data second game of stratgama with the alien sent to overseas wargames involing the enterprise and nearly deerlict ship comanded by Riker

My goal like data is to endure since I unlike you KNOW a true victory is something I can not achieve without a lot of help from and as it happened you get tired of my respnding but not giving you exactly what you want

Yes, you're jamming, and I guess your math skills suck as much as your English skills do.

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

You'll change nothing tomorrow, Morkie. Not even your underware.

You'll still be the same foul-mouthed, insolent little troll that you are today, and will always be.

Like it or not, I'm still employed, Morkie.

I do address you by name, Morkie.

As for who the coward is, anyone who cares to do so can back up through todays crap from you and see how you jammed my solicitation for Christmas greetings for wounded vets, and then tried to claim >>>I<<<

Not according to what YOU have been saying...It SHOULD be open-and-shut. They should have the "consent" in hand and simple forensics will answer the rest.

But let's face it, Morkie...There won't be any investigation and it won't be because "they didn't bother..." It's because your

It certainly did matter, Morkie.

This is an unmoderated forum.

I posted an item soliciting season's wishes for Americans who have sacrificed more in a few months than you have ever given in your whole life.

You jammed it and made a spectacle of yourself.

> I coment withou t changing his title that a beeter christmass deed

No...You tried to extend the Morkie-vs-Steve row to one that didn't deserve your callous retorts. It was all about you, and you were not about to let a chance go by to molest it.

> he then responded witha ttacing me perons with msr of his #### posts

Ahhhhhhhhhhhhhhh...The TRUE "veteran" spirit there, Morkie...Call an effort to bring some consolation to our Troop's lives 'spam"

My repsonse is to reiterate the call for support of our troops and for anyone who has even the least little bit of character to call you for what you are...An anti-American pig.

> between the 2 of us only I have the displine to to stick this method > of response you simply can't resist trying pile on new smears ans

My posts were to call for support of out troops.

Your posts were to attack me and alledge some ulterior motive.

> indeed the streagy was suggestion me by a ST:TNG episode by CMDR Data

Guess you get to memorize all those TV shows like that when you're sitting at home waiting for the check to come in.

> My goal like data is to endure since I unlike you KNOW a true victory

You gave me exactly what I wanted, Morkie...

More evidence that you're the lowlife pig that I've been asserting all along.

Most people in this nation are getting tired of the war in Iraq, but they are mostly FOR supporting the Troops and showing some appreciation for what they are doing and have done.

All except YOU, that is.

I guess that comes from having almost everything given to you most of your life.

Typical welfare wonder...Up all night...Sleep till noon...It would be different if you held a real job and worked 3rd shift, but you insist you ahve this "day job at home on the computer..."

Kinda hard to make any money sleeping till noon or later.

> but can't you take amy on a real vaction you cheap tight wad

Amy works in the local school district, Morkie.

> hel not even an excursurtion down to disney you drive there in a day and the

Hmmmmmmmmmmmmm....Orlando's a 12 hour dirve from here with gas at $2.20/gal. Overnight accomodations are over $60/night for anything other than Motel 6 or a campground. Then there's park fees, parking, Coke's at $2.75 a whack then 12 more hours on the trip back.

Not to mention we've ALREADY been to both Disneyland AND Disneyworld twice each.

No thanks. Been there, done that...got several tee-shirts, coffee mugs, posters, etc etc etc.

> instead of being lying bully abusing all > vet of this war and any vet you entountered for the "fun or it

I've not been bullying any vets, Morkie. I've not been bullying any NON-vets.

Just making fun of you and pointing out your cowardly anti-vet policies.

It's not.

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member

Sloppiness. Laziness. Cheapskate. Idiot. Fool. Coward.

Take your pick...Mix-and-match...Any and all apply.

No records were stolen from the Army vis-a-vis you, Morkie...They'd ahve to EXIST before they could be stolen, and no such records exist. The Army says you never served and you've not ponied up so mcuh as a picture in a unit annual to prove you were there.

You keep making this claim but anyone who knows what's involved in obtaining medical records knows you're lying.

Stop it.

Now...WHY are you trying to suppress a message that promotes supporting our wounded troops?

It's now 08:19 Central...Everyone's had a chance to see that, yes, you were jamming the message for Veterans.

Why'd you do it?

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched
the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference"
to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who
have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the
wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as

follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center
6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice
they've made would be appropriate.

Again...the facts are that you were up until 0200 jamming messages on RRAP.

Messages supporting wounded Vets.

That pretty much makes you a pig.

So...Why'd you do it...?!?!?

There's a BIG problem, Morkie....You spent the whole night trying to jam a message that solicits season's messages for wounded vets.

You fouled the message for YOUR OWN PURPOSES.

> you OTOH are laughed at across the nation for claiming other men you > have never met eat your #####

Actually, Morkie..They are laughing at YOU for making that assertion since the paragraph you keep misquoting starts off with "Morkie, I will conceed that you know two things that I never will....."

And none of the rest suggests that anyone consume MY excrement.

But it does prove that you're incompetent in English.

I don't need to "fake" anything, Morkie.

BTW...You never did tell me how you and Gavvi decide who's on top any one night over another.....

Gavvi: "Can I Be Frank With You, Mork.....?"

Mork: "Sure Gavvi, But Tomorrow I Get To Be Frank!"

Black civil rights activist Reverend Jesse Lee Peterson wrote, "...the whole holiday is made up! You won't find its roots in Africa or anywhere else."

Kwanzaa is not a traditional holiday of African people and is observed almost exclusively in the United States.

Ron Karenga created Kwanzaa in California in 1966, during his leadership of the black nationalist United Slaves Organization (also known as the "US Organization"), in order to give African Americans an alternative holiday to Christmas. He later stated, "...it was chosen to give a Black alternative to the existing holiday and give Blacks an opportunity to celebrate themselves and history, rather than simply imitate the practice of the dominant society."

In 1967, a year after Karenga proposed this new holiday, he publicly espoused the view that "Jesus was psychotic" and that Christianity was a white religion that blacks should shun.

Ron Karenga's criminal record includs having been convicted and jailed on charges of felonious assault and false imprisonment for the torture of two black women.

Tony Snow, White House Press Secretary since April 2006, wrote that "There is no part of Kwanzaa that is not fraudulent." and other writers have remarked on the Marxist leanings of Karenga and some of the seven principles of Kwanzaa, questioning whether Kwanzaa should be taught in American schools.

The seven principles of Kwanza correspond to Karenga's notion that "the seven-fold path of blackness is think black, talk black, act black, create black, buy black, vote black, and live black." - PURE racism!

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Kwanzaa

The first and second priciples of Kwanza are racist:

"To strive for and maintain unity in the... race."

"To define ourselves, name ourselves, create for ourselves and speak for ourselves."

The third and fourth priciples are also racist and endorses Communism:

"To build and maintain our community together and make our brothers' and sisters' problems our problems and to solve them together."

"To build and maintain our own stores, shops and other businesses and to profit from them together."

The fifth priciple's goal is the same as todays Islam-0-facists:

"To make our collective vocation the building and developing of our community in order to restore our people to their traditional greatness."

The sixth priciple is the only legitimate priciple assuming it is not exclusionary and the words "our community" does not imply racism:

"To do always as much as we can, in the way we can, in order to leave our community more beautiful and beneficial than we inherited it."

Now knowing their agenda the term "our community" in the Kwanza priciples are exclusionary, racist and communist.

How many of you have young children in public shools being taught about communist Kwanza?

Well, fatboy, it's been a fun four hours but I have to go out and do some of the things that you claim I don't have to do...

As you look at all the pages of stuff that I KNOW you're going to want to try and hide, just remember this...THIS message is the one I generated new...All of those other posts are in DIRECT RESPONSE to all those "nu thrads" that you generated the other night.

Next time you go spitting them out like that you might like to ask yourself if you're as ready to have to respond to all of them too. I can retask every single one if you want, but hey, it's YOUR workday, fatboy...I get to play for the rest of the day.

And by the way...Why are you so afraid of that Christmas message...?!?!?

Steve, K4YZ

So what would you rather have people (of any color) do - Not help each other, not support each other, not work together for something mutually to their benefit? You think every single person should be an island, never once helping his/her fellow human lest they be considered a Socialist? Do you kick a guy when he's down because it is the patriotic American thing to do?

That is so unnatural it is absurd - to you, a regular old-fashioned village, in which everyone is a part of the greater community where everyone must live, must sound like Lenin is behind every door. I am concerned about the racist aspect of the ideas too, but jeez, come on - natural normal people help one another, look out for the other guy, and try to help humankind progress by working together. This is not Communism, it is the simple milk of human kindness.

I'd hate to live in your world.

"It would be offly hard for any of you to abuse me on usenet. Really. I "Immorality: The morality of those who are having a better time." -- H.

L. Mencken

"Consider that language a moment. 'Purposefully and materially supported hostilities against the United States' is in the eye of the beholder, and this administration has proven itself to be astonishingly impatient with criticism of any kind. The broad powers given to Bush by this legislation allow him to capture, indefinitely detain, and refuse a hearing to any American citizen who speaks out against Iraq or any other part of the so-called 'War on Terror.'

"If you write a letter to the editor attacking Bush, you could be deemed as purposefully and materially supporting hostilities against the United States. If you organize or join a public demonstration against Iraq, or against the administration, the same designation could befall you. One dark-comedy aspect of the legislation is that senators or House members who publicly disagree with Bush, criticize him, or organize investigations into his dealings could be placed under the same designation. In effect, Congress just gave Bush the power to lock them up." -- William Rivers Pitt

"It has become clear in recent months that a critical mass of the American people have seen through the lies of the Bush administration; with the president's polls at an historic low, growing resistance to the war Iraq, and the Democrats likely to take back the Congress in mid-term elections, the Bush administration is on the ropes. And so it is particularly worrying that President Bush has seen fit, at this juncture to, in effect, declare himself dictator." -- Frank Morales

The Kwanza priciples of "our community" refers EXCLUSIVELY to black, only blacks, and nothing but blacks.
What part of RACISM to you not understand?

So, this has - what - to do with Communism?

> What part of RACISM to you not understand?

My opposing comment was about your overt reference to communism applying to simply wanting to help a fellow human being. It had nothing to do with race - that was in your equation, not mine. I understood your comments perfectly, and recognized that, like so many others trying to force a point over which they have no control, you are willing to mix apples and oranges. You are seriously confused, and are grasping at straws.

So, assuming you are right, what do you propose to do about it? Kill or jail all the black people who do not vow to include whites and latinos and asians in their somewhat limited philosophy? Put them on locked reservations? There isn't a lot else you can do without reaching out to them with another idea - and you just don't seem the type to reach out to anybody. Unless you have a solution to the problem, quit your pathetic self-pity and whining.

And by the way, I stand by my comments. The words, as written, simply are principles that communities have lived by for millions of years. It is the natural companion to the Biblical phrase "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Yes, racism is a problem in this philosophy as elsewhere, but finding Communism in those words is just ridiculous. I'd hate to live in a world as selfish and heartless as yours.

Carrying WHAT ball...?!?!

What was done was done at WRC, fatboy...NOT Newington or Washington.

Brother are YOU self-deluded!

Jim certainly gives that impression. I wonder where he got that rose-colored mirror?

In Robesin-Land, everything is reduced to a hostile action.

I haven't spoken to him about it, but I think he'll get one. My guess is he'll start out as an Extra and move up from there.

He pokes fun at the things that should be poked at. You, for instance.
And as far as being anti-Amateur, you have done more to harm the ARS as an insider (Extra), than Len ever could as an outsider.
Congratulations. Your Army Recruiter/Sailor Dad would be proud.

Really? More Robesin-Land hostile action reductionisms, I see.

You're just plain wrong. I have no trouble making friends, and Len has no knife at my back. Do you have any other untruths to tell?

Looks like you've got yourself pegged.

The first step to fixing your problems it to admit you have them. Best of Luck.

Oh poor earthling. Your google research didn't yield that much for you did it? That Dan Dare is not the original who I killed, I believe he is his son or grandson, not that I really care. A pale imitation of, I don't like to say this, none the less true, imitation of a much greater man. Thanks for playing though.

Between his "excrement eating" remarks, and his admissions of lying, I think he just might be on the road to recovery. However, backsliding is a very real possibility in a 99-Step program.

He is an imposter pretending to be Professor Paul Kengor of Grove City think it is a student playing games, and I think Dr. Kengor would be Bill, I respectfully disagree. Your strategy works with normal people.

Robesin isn't normal, and he'll only go away when his ISP is shut off.
He's the originator of the infamous "MARS >>>IS<<< Amareur Radio" declaration and the excrement eating thread. At the moment, he's got himself wrapped up in the flag, so he's untouchable even if off-topic.

The Jan07 issue of QST featured software allowing an OP to manually copy Morse Code beyond the present highs of 147WPM. It goes up to 200WPM.

I ditched my novice call as soon as I could. At 5WPM and putting out a 3x call, it took about 3 weeks to send CQ.

I think you meant "badgering", but that's OK...We realize that you are just whining again, Morkie.

You weren't "driven" to do anything you weren't already doing, Morkie.

Each post I put up was in direct response to one YOU already put up.

What you are doing is "ceonsoring" a holiday message in support of our wounded troops.

What you did was show us exactly what kind of "man" you are...You attacked the messgenger regardless of the message.

Nope.

The message that EVERYONE got here is that you didn't care about the message supporting the VETERANS...You were ONLY interested in making sure you didn't see any of my screen names where you think YOURS ought to be.

My state of mind is fine, Morkie.

I took YOUR actions and YOUR words and made a fool out of you again....to the total of FOUR PAGES of your mispelled, deceitful and anti-American rants.

Thanks...I can always count on YOU to make MY point about YOUR foolishness!

Bill...Welcome to the "logic" of Brian P Burke, N0IMD, hiding behind one of his "anonymous" screen names as "hot--ham-and-cheese"

Brian has participated, along with Leonard H Anderson (unlicensed) and Mark Morgan (KB9RQZ) in an anti-Amateur Radio tirades and has fallen flat on his face in one prognostication about Amateur Radio after another. He doesn't like it that I've been right.

One of Brain's favorite tactics is to take comments out-of-context and then try to represent them as the entire "gist" of the comments.

My "MARS >>>IS<<< AMATEUR RADIO" comment refered to the fact that the MARS program was staffed almost entirely by Amateur Radio licensees and was in the very spirit of what it means to be an Amateur Radio licensee...He doesn't want to repeat THAT part since it wouldn't serve his purposes. (to try and embarrass me)

He also claims that I am repsonsible for the "excrement eating" thread. That's a blatant lie. His "friend", Mark Morgan, KB9RQZ, is SOLELY RESPONSIBLE for the authorship of those subject lines and use of profanity. You won't see my subject lines repeating it..

Brain, of course, has NEVER owned up to any one of his own misrepresentatiuons of Amateur Radio. He has made ludicrous claims that have failed to meet any statndard of proof or substance, including any one of several claims of having been a DX station, misrepresentations about MARS, RACES, ARES, and other poorly conceptualized opinions that have fallen by the wayside as failing the test of evidence.

Everyone's entitled to their opinions. Brain's opinions of me are obviously low as he, despite having allegedly been a veteran himself, are anti-veteran and anti-volunteer. I've rubbed his nose in one failed opinion after another.

So...There's my $0.02. Do with it as you will, but I'd take a BIG grain of salt with any traffic coming from "hot-ham-and-cheese", as you are welcome to do with mine.

I think he was refering my alledgelyshe male wife but then woger think everyone but him has AIDS I think it is a result of him tryng to rationize why he , woger, never has sex, if everyone has AIDS then it would be better not to have sex. I may be wrong I do not have a strong

There's no "backsliding", Brain.

Unlike you I have alswaus support Veterans issues and the Veterans themsleves.

Uhhhhhhh...The "excrement eating" is all-Morkie, Brain.

Too bad you're trying to double talk...It only reinforces my assertions of your two-faced responses.

I'm sure you do, Wabbit. In fact, I don't believe you even need a

UNQUOTE

Oh, we (the pro-code camp) KNEW what we were up against...Mostly the overwhelming attitude of a voiciferous "gimmegimmegimme" generation that would never be satisfied until they could get "something for nothing" or as close to nothing as possible.

The written tests have been gutted for years. Colleges that used to allow extra-curricular credit for possessing an Amateur License no long do it since the questions are public domain and therefore negates any evidence that the holder really "knows" anything about radio.

Now the one and only "skill" test is gone too.

There is an overwhelming "give me more for less" mindset these days, and indeed Amateur Radio is an minute part of that mindset, but it's here and it's done.

Now to see where Amateur Radio "is" in a year or two from now. I for one will be watching with bated breath to see if this in-rush of new operators shows up. I say "it ain't a hap'nin thing"

As I have said previously, this is my guess: There's going to be an initial rush of "upgrades" of current Techs to HF licenses. There will be a chartable increase in new-license applicants for the next 12 months, and then it will taper back to close-to-original numbers.

I say the overall census of the Amateur Radio service doesn't have more than a 10% short term increase, and it will be back to "business as usual" by this time next year.

Any Takers?

HAM isn't as popular as it used to be. All of the old HAMS have either died off or are no longer on the air for various reasons. When a service is threatened due to lack of interest, something must be done to encourage people into the hobby. The FCC decided to eliminate one of the hardest parts of obtaining a ticket in an effort to encourage people to obtain a license and hopefully keep HAM radio alive and well. Why is it I do not hear much code on the bands anymore? It used to be that every ship at sea would communicate via key. Not today. Not in the age of Satellites. So, why would you feel the code should still remain an active part of being a HAM? Do YOU still use code? If so, for what?

Yeah, keep HAM back into the old days and don't evolve with technology. That's the way to do it. It was better in the old days when you had to bust your ass to learn a code that you would probably never use or even listen to.

Time to move forward. With the cost of equipment far more expensive than what CB used to be in the 70's, I seriously doubt HAM will turn into what CB has become. Also, you fail to mention the fact that the FCC DOES monitor and enforce HAM radio unlike CB that's become a zoo.

Anyone can go to the FCC enforcement website and read the many reports of hefty fines imposed on commercial radio and HAM alike.

And before HAM turns into a CB zoo, it would have evolved a lot further than it is today and people still wouldn't be able to buy a HAM toy to use like CB. Enforcement will become a HAM wide effort, whereas, established HAMs will have to keep an eye on new operators to ensure they don't cross the line and if they do, turn them in to the FCC for action. Most HAMS I know can work together to locate the fixed transmission of another HAM.

So, relax. You will probably be gone to the big HAM shack in the sky before HAM goes the way of CB.

For decades I've seen the entry requirements ease, and for decades
I've seen people lament that the newcomers aren't entering the hobby.

Canada had a code-free license in 1978, and virtually nobody knows about it because it made no impact. But since then, we've seen a change in the licensing structure in 1990, and then some fiddling in recent years, but still people talk about needing newcomers.

The problem is that in that same time period, amateur radio has been less and less out in the public view.

When I was a kid, I learned about amateur radio in the magazine that was part of my Cub membership. And I'm sure there was an article about the hobby in one of those children's magazines I read at the time.
Even 35 years ago this month, when the rules in Canada changed so you didn't have to be 15 or over to get a license, that news was in the local newspaper (well actually, the rule was passed in December of 1971, but didn't go into effect until the end of April).

But when that rule changed, I hadn't a clue where to find a local amateur radio club, I had to ask a predominantly US organization, the ARRL, where I could find a local club.

The same local clubs don't even bother putting information on their websites today about where they will be doing Field Day, they don't post in the local buy and sell newsgroup about the upcoming hamfests, and they don't get those hamfests local papers' listings of upcoming events. Nevermind how rare it is to see a feature article about amateur radio, these groups aren't even being effective in their own realm.

So if some kid doesn't bump into amateur radio, they will never know that it exits. They don't somehow figure there must be a hobby about radio and then go searching, they need that initial contact. If they don't know about the local hamfest, then they'll never get there to buy some neat junk and maybe get lured into the hobby. If they don't read about amateur radio in the newspaper, then they won't think "hey, that sounds like a neat thing to do" and then go looking for more information.

Those kids don't even get to amateur radio to know whether or not the tests or the code test are an impediment or actually something neat that they can be successful at and boast to their friends.

In the old days, it was kids who got into the hobby, and then grew up. But as that changes, it gets worse. Because the oldtimers forget what it was like to be a kid and discover this neat hobby, or they came to the hobby as adults and never knew it as a kid. Those latter can't reach the kids, because they don't have a grasp on what might be appealing about the hobby. So the entry rules get watered down, which is often easy, instead of getting out and doing the work to promote the hobby.

Start quizzing kids today, and likely they won't say "Amateur radio? It's outdated and there's the internet and I've got my cellphone" which is what the older people are saying. The kids would most likely say "Amateur radio? What's that?" as in they've never heard of it.

Until amateur radio is well known among the youths, note I'm not talking about interest just that it's at least better known among the young, then nobody can really know what would or wouldn't appeal to them to get them to take the test.

People get lost in their own interests. They get the local club's newsletter, so they know about the upcoming code and theory classes, the upcoming hamfests and where the club will be setting up for Field Day. But then they mistake that for the public at large knowing about such things. And once that happens, the rest of the world doesn't know about these things, or amateur radio in general.

This isn't about selling something. It's about sharing something. Either the oldtimers see something in the hobby that they want to convey to the young, or they can never get the young to come to the hobby. The young won't come because "it's good for you". Convince them that code is a great thing, and that will not stop them from seeking a license.

Hello Michael,

I haven't the slightest idea of what radio (ham/cb/sw/scanner) magazines sold in your area over the past 3 or 4 decades, but I know what used to be sold around this (Rochester, NY) area.

There were a number of CB magazines, probably 5 or 6 amateur radio magazines, magazines devoted to short wave listening, as well as popular electronics.

5 year ago that was down to 1 magazine (and I don't recall which, but it was a VHF mag). I don't think there were any more cb magazines.

As to computers, that peaked perhaps 5 years ago and has dwindled to 3, perhaps 4 at most, magazines.

The number of magazines devoted to a beautiful body have exploded .... maybe the baby boomers LOL. Of course, as one of the first baby boomers, I don't resemble any of those bodies :D

Of course, the Internet has detracted from them considerably. One can easily look up how to build antennas using a simple search engine, but, I suspect, computers, ipods, x-boxes and such have lowered the interest in amateur radio.

As you point out, there will always be some that are interested. The electronics one can pick up can me of immeasurable value, not to mention the understanding of how radios (and cell phones, which are duplex radios) work, along with propogation.

An interesting thing happened here about 6 years ago. A construction outfit was at the bottom of a hill and they were facing Lake Ontario. The owner asked the guys if they wanted to simply stay the day and finish the job. The guys said "yes" so the owner allowed them to use his cell phone and call their wives. About 6 guys took him up on the offer. Too bad the owner didn't understand propogation and the hill was blocking the cell phone tower. More unfortunately, the cell phones worked just fine. Very unfortunately, they did not know they connected through a Canadian tower .... until the owner received a bill for hundreds of dollars for that short time everyone used the cell phone :D

Well, silly you. You seem to not be able to read and can't seem to interpret language in context.

Everything about Kwanzaa is EXCLUSIONARY. It has nothing to do with the GLOBAL community and everything to do with BLACK people's community - D'oH!

Why don't you and your homo ham buddy owner get a fucking room already,
Steve? Or at least keep your lame breeding ritual out of rrcb.

Thanks.
